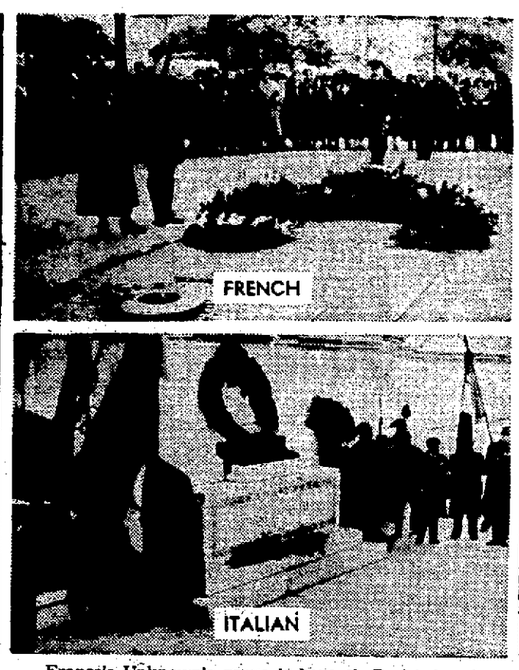
Nations Honor World War Dead At Tombs Of Unknown Soldiers

TOMBS of Unknown Soldiers have become the memorials to the seven and a half millions who died in the great conflict that ended 20 years ago today. Great Britain started the custom when she buried her Unknown Warrior in Westminster Abbey, London, in November, 1920. France, Italy, the United States and other nations followed. The American memorial was dedicated in 1921. Here are some of the national shrines:

A double guard stands watch over Germany's Unknown at all times. The tomb is in the guard house of the imperial palace. The annual Heroes' day ceremony in March is held there.

In America, too, an armed sentry patrols the tomb of "an American soldier known but to God." It is located in Arlington National cemetery, near Washington, and is the center of the official Armistice day ceremonies in the United States.



France's Unknown's grave is beneath Paris' Arc de Triomphe. Veterans daily replenish its Eternal Flame (in circle, foreground). Italy's "Ignoti Militi" lies near Mussolini's residence. The tomb was dedicated on Italy's Armistice day, Nov. 4, in 1921.

Britain's cenotaph to "the glorious dead" is the setting of its Armistice day ceremonies. At all times Britons bare their heads when passing.

G.O.P. Gain No Threat, View Of Roosevelt

Continued Liberal Form of Government Still Intact, He Says.

(By Associated Press)

WASHINGTON—President Roosevelt said today he did not believe the results of last Tuesday's elections constituted any threat to the continuation of liberal government.

At his press conference, Mr. Roosevelt declared he thought the election returns were all right.

A questioner, referring to the president's speech on Friday before the elections, asked Mr. Roosevelt whether he believed the outcome of the voting, which resulted in heavy Democratic losses and Republican gains, constituted a threat to the continuation of liberal government.

The president replied that he certainly did not think so.

Sees No 'Coalition' Bloc.

At the same time, he predicted that he would not encounter what one of his questioners called "coalition opposition"—presumably the combining of Republican and anti-New Deal Democrats against administration proposals to congress.

He expressed the belief his congressional program would be accorded about the same reception as before.

Mr. Roosevelt chuckled heartily when the reporter questioning him on his point, said bluntly he believed there would be such opposition.

For the first time, he disclosed election predictions which he made and sealed in an envelope soon after going to Hyde park the middle of last week.

He figured New York state results, Mr. Roosevelt said, just about the way they came out.

He was wrong by one on senate races, he said, having predicted the loss of seven Democratic seats whereas the Republicans actually gained eight.

DYNAMITE SET OFF IN OFFICE CAUSES BLAZE

Police Believe Amateur Yeggs Placed Explosive in Door, Laid 300 Feet of Wire.

DISCOVERED BY CUSTODIAN

Thieves Leave Empty-Handed, Damage at Ohio $700; 4th Attempt in 8 Years.

Working with apparently no concern for time, safe-crackers early today failed in an attempt to blow a safe at the Ohio theater containing several hundred dollars.

The attempted robbery was discovered at 6 a. m. by George Warner, custodian, when he arrived for work. It was the fourth time in the past eight years that yeggs have tried to blow open the safe.

Warner said he found the office door, just inside the main entrance standing open and smoke pouring through the theater.

Extinguish Blaze.

He called the fire department which extinguished the blaze which police said was caused by dynamite explosion.

The office where the fire had been confined was ravaged by the flames. Frank Harpster, manager of the theater, estimated the loss at between $500 and $700.

Police Chief Meade K. Bates who investigated the attempted robbery, said the thief or thieves, apparently amateurs, had placed a stick of dynamite through the safe door fitting and then carefully laid wires down the aisle to the basement backstage where they made connections to the electric light circuit.

Splice Cords Together.

Bates said that electric extension cords, light cords and the cord to an electric sweeper had been taken and spliced together to make up a 300-foot line to set off the charge.

The force of the explosion hurled the safe door fitting through the ceiling and the walls of the office. Feather pillows and pads carried into the building to muffle the noise of the explosion were ignited by the charge and caused the fire, the chief added.

Police advanced the theory that the safe crackers had hid in the building until after closing hours last night since no forcible entry to the building could be found. The office door, however, had been jimmied open.

Harpster reported that the building had been searched as usual before he locked up at 11:30 p. m.

He said the day's receipts had been deposited in a bank shortly after the box office closed at 10 p. m. but that there were several hundred dollars in the safe.

The fire destroyed the carpet on the office floor and office furniture and damaged the inter-

20 Years Since War Change Vets' Minds

Most of Them Ready to Fight Again If U. S. Becomes Involved.

Exactly 20 years ago today, at 11 o'clock in the morning, the document which ended the World war, was signed in a car on a railroad siding in Bois Compeigne, near Paris.

A wave of hysterical celebration, the like of which had never been seen before, swept America. City streets were clogged with veritable seas of human beings who shouted, wept and sang alternately, and from Times Square to country crossroads there were parades as citizens went wild with joy that the "war to end all wars," the war that was to have made the "world safe for democracy" had just ended.

In the trenches and hospitals in France and Belgium, in billets and wheat fields, soldiers heard the news. The war was over. Men who hasn't eaten a decent meal nor slept in regular beds for months, men who were dirty and lousy and weary, heard the news. They accepted it noisily or silently according to how tired they were.

Home . . . No More Wars.

It meant just one thing to them. Home . . . the end of sleeping in the mud . . . the end of a ceaseless noise . . . the end of those maddening exploding shells . . . the end of that sickening smell of dead flesh under a hot sun . . . no more rats running over your face while you slept . . . no more dried carrots and hardtack . . .

And when they came back home in the months that followed the signing of the Armistice, there

Gilead Druggist Who Heard Lincoln Speak, Dies At 83

MT. GILEAD—Horatio G. Peters, 83, who when a youth of eight years, boyishly wended his way through the crowd and climbed to the speaking platform on the day President Lincoln delivered his famed Gettysburg address, died at his home here early today after a brief illness.

Friends today recalled how Mr. Peters recounted the historical occasion to which he was a front row witness. Living at New Oxford, near Gettysburg, he accompanied his father to Gettysburg on the day that Lincoln gave the speech. He seated himself on the speaking platform during the talk, a short distance away from the president.

Mr. Peters, a druggist for 50 years, practiced in Mt. Gilead for 40 years prior to his retirement five years ago. He was a native of Pennsylvania.

His wife, Anna; a son, Stewart of Toledo, and three daughters, Mrs. Lula Cover and Mrs. Laura C. Peters of Mt. Gilead and Mrs. Edith Lewis of Troy, survive.

Funeral services will be held Sunday at 3 p. m. at the residence with Rev. Eugene Rush of the Methodist church officiating. Burial will be in the Rivercliffe cemetery.

LOSS $8,000 AS FIRE HITS FARM

Dog Rouses Family, Residence Saved; Flames Destroy Barn, 2 Horses.

A pet dog which awakened the C. B. Tingley family on the Olivesburg road last night with its barking was credited today with saving the Tingley home from destruction by fire, when flames leveled a large barn and two outbuildings near the house. Loss was estimated at $8,000, about half of which was covered by insurance.

Aroused about 11:45 p. m. by the dog's excited barking, members of the family found the barn in flames. A pumper from engine house No. 4 on Newman street saved the house and a garage but the flames had already enveloped the barn, trapping two horses in their stalls. The animals were destroyed. A tool shed and a crib near the barn were also burned.

Members of the family were unable to account for the fire, since there was no electric wiring in the barn.

Lost in the fire were a delivery truck, a power sprayer for fruit trees, farming implements, a quantity of hay, 100 bushels of oats, and a quantity of corn and other grain.

INQUIRY OPENS

State Begins Probe of Bloody Prison Break Attempt.

NASHVILLE, Tenn.—(U.P.)—An investigation into the attempted escape of six convicts from state penitentiary yesterday was ordered today by Commissioner of Institutions George H. Cate.

One of the convicts, Millard Edmonds, was fatally shot in the gun battle which followed the break, Deputy Warden C. C. Woods was near death from bullet wounds in the back, head and arm, and the five other convicts were wounded less seriously.

The convicts seized a truck and forced a trusty to drive them through the gate. A running gun fight followed.

CITY PAUSES ON ARMISTICE

Bombs Explode, Drums Roll Again on 20th Anniversary of End of Greatest War.

A series of exploding aerial bombs this noon, flags flying on the downtown streets, the beat of drums and closed offices were Mansfield's way of celebrating an occasion of 20 years ago that marked an epoch in the world's history—the signing of the armistice which ended the World war.

Tonight men in uniform will march again to the strains of their old war songs as veteran organizations and civic groups stage a parade at 7:30 that will move over Mulberry, Fourth and Main streets to Central park and back on Park avenue west to the American Legion home.

At 6:30 veterans of two wars—the World war and the Spanish-American war, will gather at the Legion home for "chow" and reminiscences, bound together by the strong tie of men who have worn uniform in defense of their country.

Parade Follows Dinner.

The parade follows the dinner meeting and all of the band organizations in the city, city departments, veterans' organizations and their auxiliaries, Boy Scouts, the Mansfield unit of the Ohio National Guard and others will be in the parade column.

On Park avenue west, before the Memorial building, a Red Cross flag made by the Red Cross Sewing club, will be raised high above the street.

Open house will be observed throughout the day and evening at the Legion home.

City, county, state and federal offices as well as many business places were closed today in celebration of Armistice day.

The largest peace-time Roll Call organization ever assembled in Richland county for a Red Cross Roll Call, spread out over the city and county this morning on the opening day of the 22nd membership drive.

Playing prominent parts in the campaign by heading major groups under the general chairmanship of W. J. Locke, are W. L. Miller as vice chairman, and Harry S. Black as advisory chairman. The county division is headed by Harold Burns, with Mrs. V. E. Vining as his assistant, while Mansfield ward workers have been organized by Mrs. John Pierce.

Bromfield To Write On Dream Farm Here

Back In U. S., Anxious to Find New Home In Richland County.

(Editor's Note—This shipboard interview with Louis Bromfield was obtained by International News Service especially for The News-Journal.)

By CHARLES E. BLAKE
(INS Staff Correspondent)

NEW YORK — Love for Richland county, Ohio, and the threats of war drove Louis Bromfield back to the United States after a 13-year voluntary exile in France.

The 42-year-old American author was in New York today after arriving last night on the S. S. Washington. But his stay in Manhattan is to be short lived and just long enough to transact a few boring details before entraining on Sunday for Oberlin, O., where he will rejoin his wife and three daughters.

The author of "The Farm," "Green Bay Tree," "Early Autumn," and "The Rains Came"—the first three having early Mansfield for their locale, and the last named a current best seller—has nothing in his portfolio for demanding publishers. But in his mind are the outlines for his next three novels—one of them to be laid in Ohio of the 1800's—which will be written on his "dream farm" somewhere in Richland county.

Mansfield has always been a source of inspiration to the author and many believe that his best novels—with the exception of "The Rains Came"—are those that were laid in The Town, as he has always referred to Mansfield. Many of his short stories were frankly — sometimes startlingly so—about Mansfield people. Among them were "The Wedding Gown," a story of the late Phoebe Wise, and "Life of Vergie Winters."

Subjects of his next three novels will concern early Ohio of 1800; Bombay, and his present fascination, the European political situation of today.

LOUIS BROMFIELD

'France is a Grand Place, But—'

In an interview today, Bromfield waxed eloquent on Ohio, his family, and France. He said:

"I planned to return to Ohio—which is the United States as far as I'm concerned—next year. But when you live half way between the Maginot line and Paris, when your motor is confiscated for war purposes, when you hold your breath from day to day with a house full of women—well, that is the time to start thinking of home.

"I love France. It was a grand place. But after these past few weeks of near-war I decided that I no longer liked Europe. It is not a pleasant place and it is not getting better fast.

"But some day I'll return to my home at Senlis. You can't live in a place for 13 years without missing it."

From France, Maginot lines and rushing his family back to America, the Mansfield, O., author turned to his immediate future, and that is not the immediate writing of one of his three proposed novels, but this—

"I want to find a farm down in Richland county. I mean a real honest to goodness farm where my children can be raised. Ohio is America to me and I've always liked it there and why not? It has done an awful lot for me. It is a dream place and that is what my farm will be."

Finds European Intrigue Fascinating

Bromfield will get himself settled in Ohio before again returning to France and to Senlis. He likes his French home too much to think of giving it up altogether. But his permanent address from now on will be that dream place farm down in Richland county.

And after he gets settled in Richland county he is going to begin working against the Republicans—this came out after he had been asked if he had heard that the Republicans had swept Ohio. He added as an afterthought:

"So help me."

Turning to Europe, Author Bromfield decided that the inside story of European politics is the world's most fascinating subject today.

"Nobody, and I mean nobody, including Hitler, Mussolini and Chamberlain—has any idea of what is going to happen next over there. It is completely out of control and the inside workings of the politicians and the leaders are dirtier than they ever have been—worse than in 1914.

"All of Europe today is an enlarged Balkan state—anything can happen any minute and no one knows when or what it will be. The whole situation over there is full of uncertainties, double dealings and double crossings. There are but two things you can depend on in Europe:

"England and France are married together forever—and conditions are really desperate."

Bromfield will leave New York Sunday for Oberlin where he will rejoin Mrs. Bromfield and his three daughters—aged 14, 11 and 6.

BERLIN QUIET AFTER RIOTS

Anti-Jewish Demonstrations Leave Millions in Damage to Jewish Property.

(By International News Service)

BERLIN—Complete order was restored in Berlin today following yesterday's anti-Jewish demonstrations, which left thousands of Jews throughout Germany under arrest and millions of dollars worth of Jewish property damaged.

But this morning, bathed in brilliant sunshine, the German capital appeared quiet and peaceful and there were few evidences of yesterday's incidents.

Debris-filled streets had been cleaned overnight and apart from paneless window frames in closed Jewish shops and the ruins of flame-gutted synagogues there were almost no outward signs of the anti-semitic outbreak.

Cite Proclamation.

German newspapers called attention to the proclamation issued by Propaganda Minister Joseph Goebbels exhorting Germans to "desist from further actions and demonstrations against Jewry," adding:

"A definite reply to the Jewish assault in Paris will be given Jewry by means of legislation and decrees."

This was reference to the death of Ernst Von Rath, third secretary of the German embassy in Paris, who was shot by a young Polish Jew.

QUAKE TRACED

Severe Shocks in Aleutian Isles, Scientists Say.

One of the severest earthquakes ever recorded was traced today to an epi-center in or near the Aleutian islands, west of Alaska.

Residents at Kanakanak on the Aleution chain reported a tremor but it was not felt at Fairbanks or at Juneau on the mainland.

It was severe enough to cause a definite tidal reaction in the Hawaiian islands and to send seismograph needles into wild gyrations thousands of miles distant.

Commander J. H. Peters of the U. S. Geodetic survey at Honolulu reported that the tide went out half a foot and came back about seven-tenths of a foot before receding again.

PENSIONS FOR AGED ON WAY

1,150 in County to Receive Delayed Checks Monday as Result of Fund Transfer.

Richland county's 1,150 old age pensioners will receive their October pension checks Monday, State Auditor Joseph T. Ferguson announced today.

The pensions, two weeks past due, will be paid in full from state funds transferred from the general fund to the pension fund by order of Gov. Martin L. Davey. The checks to Richland county's aged will amount to about $26,000.

Placing his staff on a 24-hour-a-day basis until the checks are in the mail, the state auditor began mailing the checks today, shortly after the transfer of $1,000,000 from the general fund was made by State Finance Director M. Ray Allison.

Despite the Armistice holiday, the state auditor said he had arranged with the post office department to handle mail up to 4 p. m. today in order to speed up mailing of the pension checks.

Withdrawal of federal funds which provide for half of the pensions forced the state to pay the entire amount for October and take the chance of collecting from the federal government when the squabble betwen Gov. Davey and the social security board is settled.

The social security board, which supplies half of the pension funds to the state, suspended federal aid in Ohio three days before the August primary election, charging that Gov. Davey had used pensions to help him in his campaign for renomination.

Economist To Offer Novelties To Pull Meals Out of Doldrums

That "three-a-day" feeling gets the most enthusiastic homemaker into the deepest rut imaginable every once in a while, and that is why the News-Journal is bringing Miss Ruth Chambers, home economist and lecturer, to Mansfield next week for a four-day series of talks and demonstrations on food preparation at the Ohio theater. Miss Chambers will give her demonstrations between 9 and 11:30 a. m. Tuesday through Friday.

Novelties are one of the mainstays of meals, and it is the I-can't think - of -a-thing-to-fix-for-dinner mood that ruins family peace. So Miss Chambers has a number of neat tricks which will pull the slumpiest table out of the doldrums.

One of her mouth-watering pets is called supper medley, and it is a one-dish meal which includes bulk pork sausage and raw potatoes. Liver chop suey is another tantalizing sounding variation on an old and familiar theme.

So if you've tumbled into a rut, if your food bills have been too high and you fear you've been wasteful, if you want to get abreast of the times again in your own job of homemaking, make arrangements now to attend every session of the "Foods of the Hour."

France Orders Embargo on Supplies for China.

SHANGHAI — (AP) — American firms in Shanghai received reports today that French authorities in Indo China had imposed an embargo against the importation of war supplies destined for China.

It was said the embargo, undertaken to remove friction with the Japanese, includes trucks and spare motor parts despite representations to the French that they are not war supplies.

Closing of the Indo China route to imports would seriously cripple Chinese defense since the only other remaining import routes would be through Burma, with a long overland haul, and from Soviet Russia into northwestern China.

LAUNCHES ROLL CALL CAMPAIGN

Largest Peace-Time Red Cross Army Begins 22nd Annual Drive for Members.

The Shelby branch of the chapter will conduct its own drive for memberships, with L. A. McGraw as general chairman.

The opening gun of the Roll Call was fired last night when 300 workers attended the dinner at the Westinghouse cafeteria and the program which followed.

The latter was presented in the auditorium and included a series of speakers who outlined the work of the chapter, starting with Roy R. Spetka, who is serving his second term as chairman of the chapter. He introduced the speakers that followed, Dr. D. D. Deeds, prominent in Red Cross first aid work; Harker A. Enlow, director of first aid; Mrs. Schuyler Zackman, talking on county work, Charges Burge, who spoke on Junior Red Cross work; W. J. Locke, general chairman of the Roll Call, and Mrs. Anna Fish and Mrs. L. N. Hoffman, both of the Shelby branch.

A striking presentation in "black-outs" dramatized the wrong and the right way for Roll Call workers to approach prospective members. The four young women who represented the solicitors were Jane Weuthrich, Kay Baker, Helen Laurel and Elsie MacFadden.

The stage was arranged by Mrs. V. E. Vining, who was chairman of the dinner and the meeting last night. The auditorum was darkened while the Smart's accordian band played a medley of war-time songs. The curtains parted to the sound of martial music and the American Legion drum and bugle corp, led by Howard Neuman, marched across the stage, followed by a rifle squad.

The tableau was particularly impressive. A single beam of light fell across a huge red cross before which stood the "World's Greatest Mother," the symbolic figure of the Red Cross nurse portrayed by Mrs. Harold Balyiet. At her feet were two figures symbolical of distressed humanity — Miss Mary Cox and Hugh Faulkner. Filling in the picture as the lights came up were the Legion drum corps and Smart's band.

Voices over the loud speakers were those of Charles Newcomb and Rev. Hayes M. Braker.

During the dinner hour the German band unit of Senior High

Ohio State Also Gets Nod

By OSCAR RUHL, News-Journal Sports Editor.

WHO'LL win tomorrow's Minnesota-Notre Dame conflict? Herbert W. Barker of the Associated Press says "Notre Dame! They may be overdue for a fall, especially when called upon to meet such rugged opposition, but this corner sticks with Notre Dame." Standing far out on the end of a fragile limb, Harry Ferguson of the United Press says "Minnesota in the upset of the week." Another Associated Press expert, Sid Feder, says "Notre Dame over Minnesota."

Now for a few more picks. These belong to Barker: Tennessee-Vanderbilt: On paper, the Vols look safe enough. Cornell-Dartmouth: The favorite will be Dartmouth but the hunch says Cornell. Texas Christian-Texas: More long faces for Texas' Longhorns. T. C. U. Washington-Southern California: Washington is coming along fast but Southern California gets the nod. Syracuse-Duke: Syracuse's season probably ended last week with the defeat of Colgate. Fordham-North Carolina: Fordham, but the Rams will have to battle. Nebraska-Pitt: Even with Goldberg out, Pitt seems to have too much stuff for inexperienced Nebraska. U. C. L. A.-Wisconsin: Absolutely a guess, U. C. L. A.

Oklahoma-Missouri: The spot for an upset if Missouri's Paul Christman plays up to form. Out of the hat, Oklahoma. Princeton-Yale: Yale seems more resourceful and gets this faint-hearted ballot. Holy Cross-Brown: Holy Cross figures to wear down the Bruins and win, handily. New York university-Colgate: Possibly an extremely close one. Colgate. Carnegie-Duquesne: The conquerors of Pitt will have to fight off a let-down as well as Duquesne. An uncertain vote for Carnegie.

Michigan-Northwestern: Man the lifeboats. Michigan. Illinois-Ohio State: Not much choice but the nod goes to Ohio State. Indiana-Iowa: It's a long wait between touchdowns for these two. Indiana. Marquette-Michigan State: Tough enough but State rates the call.

* * * * *

Dartmouth to Take Over Cornell—Ferguson.

FERGUSON selects: Dartmouth-Cornell: Dartmouth leaves the Big Red high (and dry) above Cayuga's waters. Duke-Syracuse: That great Duke line holds Syracuse in check. Holy Cross-Brown: Holy Cross proves again that it's one of the nation's great teams. Fordham-North Carolina: Fordham, crippled, ought to pull through after a fight. Columbia-Navy: Luckman does it for Columbia. Good spot for a tie. Yale-Princeton: Yale ought to take it. Pittsburgh-Nebraska: Pitt bounces back from that Carnegie Tech thing.

Ohio State-Illinois: Ohio State 20, Illinois 0. Northwestern-Michigan: Maybe a tie, but a shade to Northwestern. Indiana-Iowa: Indiana finally wins one. Tennessee-Vanderbilt: Tennessee, seeing the Rose Bowl ahead, turns on the heat. Tulane-Georgia: Tulane by as much as she chooses. Texas Christian-Texas: Texas is due to rise up and smite somebody, but T. C. U is too strong. Southern Methodist-Arkansas—Arkansas wins a battle in the air. St. Mary's-Santa Clara: Undefeated Santa Clara gets the call. Wisconsin-U. C. L. A.—Wisconsin is rolling now and ought to squeeze through. California-Oregon: California resumes its winning ways. Southern California-Washington: U S C is going to be tough to stop now.

Feder Believes Michigan'll Take Cats.

FEDER says this may be the week Duke comes off the unbeaten-unscored on list, but we like the Blue Devils, regardless. . . Also Texas Christian, Oklahoma and Tennessee to stay undefeated . . . The Yales to come back against the Princetons. . . . Dartmouth's powerhouse packs too much for Cornell. . . So does Southern Cal for Washington. . . . And for specials, try Alma Mammy N Y U. over Colgate today, Michigan over Northwestern and those Bad Badgers from Wisconsin to give U C L A what for . . .

Notre Dame-Minnesota Hold Mid-West Interest

South Bend Game to Have Bearing on Mythical National Title.

By STEVE SNIDER

CHICAGO — (U.P.) — A titanic struggle between Notre Dame and Minnesota for supremacy in the middlewest throws the bitter Big Ten football campaign into partial eclipse tomorrow and on its outcome depends the fate of what may be one of the greatest Irish teams of all time.

Minnesota and Notre Dame—one a grand old power nearing the end of one cycle and the other roaring back to its former heights—still carry more magic with the fans than any western power.

Wolves Even Choices.

Over in Ann Arbor, Michigan's powerhouse was an even choice to remain in the conference race by defeating Northwestern; Wisconsins' co-leaders invaded Los Angeles to meet U. C. L. A.; Ohio State plays at Illinois, Iowa meets Indiana and A. A. Stagg comes back to the midway at Chicago with his college of the Pacific squad for his first competitive homecoming against his old Chicago maroons.

But down in Notre Dame's brownstone stadium, never entirely filled before, will be wage for the first time since 1931 a dramatic battle which can have some bearing on the mythical national championship.

The Irish have won six straight games. They have been sorely tried once against Carnegie Tech, which later felled mighty Pittsburgh.

Notre Dame will be favored. The names of prancing Ben Sheridan, Bob Saggau, and Harry Stevenson, three climax runners who fill the all-important left halfback spot, and victories over Kansas, Georgia Tech, Illinois, Carnie Tech, Army and Navy point to an Irish victory.

Minnesota, of course, will be dangerous the first half. The first team Bernie Bierman can parade on the field probably will match any in the nation.

Better Prepared.

Minnesota will have a far different mental attitude tomorrow than it had last year, when the Irish won, 7 to 6, and better reserves than two weeks ago when Northwestern bowled over the Gophers, 6 to 3. Lacking experienced players, Bierman has developed three linemen—Allen Rork, Bob Johnson and Warren Kilbourne—who can play either at guard or tackle.

Anybody Missing a Leg?

PUZZLE: TWO MEN AND FIVE LEGS
Did you ever see five legs on two men? Neither did we. But if you'll investigate, maybe you can find three men in this picture, taken during a prep school game in Ogden, Utah. Catch on?

Mansfield Man Named Coach Of Kenyon College Fencers

Russell vonWieder, who has been in charge of swimming activities at Liberty park for two years, has been named fencing coach at Kenyon college, Gambier, it was revealed today in an announcement made by R J Kutler, Kenyon athletic director.

Fencing is a new sport at Kenyon, but a great amount of interest has been stirred up for the game. The squad at present consists of 30 men, but more are expected to join at the conclusion of the football season. Matches will be scheduled later in the winter.

VonWieder has made a splendid record as a coach at Ashland college. His team lost only two matches in three years. His 1933 team was undefeated.

Previous to his Ashland assignment, vonWieder taught fencing at the Los Angeles, Calif., club and Reading, Pa., fencing club.

VonWieder will continue his fencing classes at the Mansfield Y. M. C. A. Classes will continue on Monday evenings.

PERRONI STOPS RABIN

NEW YORK—Patsy Perroni 186½, Cleveland stopped Nick Rabin, 187, Bethlehem, Pa. (6).

Smith Returns For Final Tilt

THIRTEEN seniors took their last fling at the tackling dummy out at Mansfield high school today.

Tomorrow they make their last appearance in Mansfield's black livery on the gridiron in Canton against McKinley, and they're anxious to make the finale impressive.

How well they will succeed remains to be seen, but victory prospects are not encouraging in the first game of a new series with Ohio gridiron power.

Canton Holds Edge.

Canton outmatches the Tygers in manpower, experience and speed, and it will take a mighty good Mansfield team to offset these advantages.

But while the betting odds favor undefeated McKinley by a big margin, the Tygers probably can make a game of it if they continue to show the zip and dash they displayed in the Ashland tilt and practice sessions this week.

Coach Russ Murphy has hopes that the Tygers will play the kind of ball they put on display early this season.

He admitted that it might not be good enough to turn back the Bulldogs, but contended that the Tygers are more talented than they have shown this year, and believes they will test the hosts if they fight it out with them.

Mansfield's backfield will be strengthened Saturday by the return of Ike Smith, who did not play in the last two games because of ineligibility. Smith will probably start at left halfback Saturday.

The Tygers completed workouts today with a slight signal drill. This concluded one of the stiffest weeks of practice this season.

Murphy stressed improvement in open field tackling in anticipation of trouble from Marion Motley, Canton's 195-pound backfield star, and also spent much time in checking up on the pass defense.

Work on Passes.

Mansfield is expected to do a lot of throwing Saturday as much time was also spent in this department during workouts.

Seniors on the Mansfield squad are Capt. Rich Nagle, Harold Gallagher, Joe Lehr, Rich McMullen, Al Schwaner, Grover Swoyer, Bill Russell, Arl Williams, Bill Condon, Ted Bush, Joe Cosentino, Harper Krupp and Bob Roth.

Long Beach Team Plays For Ride as Well as Glory.

LONG BEACH, Calif.—(AP)—The Long Beach Junior College football squad will be playing for more than glory against Santa Monica Junior College at Santa Monica today.

The Long Beach squad, which has lost five straight games, will be divided into two teams. Each will play alternate quarters. The team making the most yardage will ride home. The other will walk the 25 long miles.

P. S. Should Long Beach win which the players hardly dare hope for, both squads will ride home.

LYLE DECISIONED

FAIRMONT, W. Va. — (AP) — Tommy Spegal, Uniontown, Pa., lightweight, stopped Lefty Young, Akron, O., in the second round of their scheduled 10-round main bout last night. Carl Turner, 150 pounds, of Fairmont, decisioned Ray Lyle, 150, Akron.

Refuses N. Y. Plan For Lengthy Tour

NEW YORK — (U P) — Middleweight champion everywhere except in his home state, Solly Krieger, and his manager, Hymie Caplin, today mapped out a lengthy tour of the hinterlands after refusing to accept the New York athletic commission's plan for untangling the muddle situation in the 160-pound division.

Krieger is recognized by the National Boxing association as a result of his 15-round victory over Al Hostak in Seattle last week. The New York ring body yesterday refused him recognition and approved the Fred Apostoli-Young Corbett III match Nov. 18, as for the world crown. Krieger was given until Nov. 22 to agree to meet the winner.

"We're champion in 47 states," Caplin said. "We won the title in the ring, and now they get a couple of guys here from California and call it a championship fight. Looks to me like Apostoli and Corbett will be fighting for the New York state title."

Hipp, Ringside Cafe Hold Pin Spotlight

Former Hits 660 In Commercial B League, While Waiters Pile Up 2821 Total at Meder Lanes.

YOUNG HALSEY HIPP is one of the younger bowlers who is making a name for himself in Mansfield bowling circles this season. He has several fine totals to his credit this season and added another last night when he registered a snappy 660 in the Commercial B league.

Bowling with the Mansfield Rugs, Hipp walloped the uprights for 223, 190 and a brilliant 247 as he led his team to a high 2812 and a clean sweep over Met's Auto Supplies. The Rugs missed the 1,000 figures by one pin in the last game. Pete Linster helped the Rugmen with a 589.

The Rugs now trail the Satterlee Restaurant and Office Cafe, who are tied for the lead, by only two games.

The Satterlee team jumped into a tie for first place with the Officemen last night when Tony Anthony shot a 583 to lead the Restaurant five to a 2754 total and a pair of wins over the Shelby Cycles while the heretofore undisputed leaders dropped two to the Ringside Cafe.

In turning back the Office club, the Ringside pinsters turned out the biggest total of the night, a 2821 which included a last game of 1006. Maier, with a 246 and 640, and Adams, with a 595, led the Ringside, while Charley Gimbel was high for the losers with a 592.

In the other matches, the Heilman Grocers won two games from the Kochheiser Sports, Ohio Public Service added two at the expense of the Burghardt Beers and the Mansfield Printers took two from the Yuncker Sports.

Score Touchdown on Only Completed Pass.

BUCYRUS — Bucyrus high's Redmen completely outplayed the Ashland gridmen in an N. C. O. conference game here last night, but the A's won the ball game, 6 to 0.

The only pass completed by Ashland last night resulted in the only touchdown of the game in the second period. Burns tossed a 28-yard pitch to Chorpening, who raced 35 yards for the score.

Bucyrus threatened constantly deep in Ashland territory, but failed to take advantage of any of them.

The Redmen led in first downs, 13 to 6, and accumulated 231 yards to 159 for Ashland.

FINAL NINE COUNT OF 32 WINS FOR SLAMMIN' SAM

WHITE SULPHUR SPRINGS, W. Va. —(AP)— Slammin' Sam Snead, last year's champion pro money winner, had $750 first prize of the new winter golf season today.

A scintillating final nine hole count of 32 gave him a total of 273, seven under par for the 72-hole test, in the $3,000 White Sulphur tournament which ended yesterday. Ky Laffoon of Chicago was second with 275. He received $450.

NEEDS WIN OVER WEAK FOES TO CINCH CROWN

DENVER, Colo. — (U.P.) — Utah university has only to defeat the league's two weakest teams to win the Big Seven conference championship. Credit for the Ute's conference leadership goes to Utah State, the team that knocked Brigham Young out of a first place tie last week-end by winning 3-0.

Utah should have no trouble the remainder of its conference season, taking on Colorado State at Salt Lake City tomorrow and Wyoming the following week.

ASHLAND PLAYS TODAY

The annual Ashland-Findlay college football game was played in Ashland today instead of Saturday. The game was moved up as part of the Armistice Day celebration.

OLYMPIAD DATES SET

NEW YORK—(U.P.)—Finland's official invitation to the United States for the XII Olympiad disclosed today that the quadriennial competition in 1940 will be held July 20 to Aug. 4.

8,000 to See Shelby-Galion Game Tonight

NCO Title At Stake

ALL ROADS pointed to Galion today as gridiron fans in this neighborhood planned to see one of the headline games on this week's schedule.

Tonight at 8 o'clock, Galion and Shelby will start the fireworks in the game that will determine the North Central Ohio conference title.

Neither team has been beaten this season, and the interest attracted by the tussle is state-wide.

Increase Capacity.

Accommodations have been increased at Heise park, but officials doubted today whether they would be able to take care of the crowd which is expected to reach 8,000.

A spectacular offensive battle is expected tonight when these two strong elevens cross the chalkmarks. Shelby will turn Harold Bliss and Bob Baker loose against a heavier Orange lineup. Galion will counter with brilliant ball carriers in Bill Durtschi, George Corrado and Eugene Schreck.

There was some doubt earlier this week whether Schreck would be able to play tonight due to a bruised foot, but Coach John Burnson said today that the veteran would be in the lineup.

Outside of Schreck, the condition of both teams was said to be perfect, with Galion inspired by a desire to trim Shelby and avenge a 24 to 12 whipping of last fall. This was the only mark on the defending champion's conference record.

Shelby is pointed for its ninth victory of the season and 11th straight. The Whippets have not been beaten since late in 1937 when they started their winning streak against Tiffin Calvert. Galior has won seven straight games this fall.

Pre-game records make the tussle a toss-up. They have met six common foes, with the margin in each instance practically the same. The only outstanding difference is in the defensive column which shows that the Orangemen have permitted only two touchdowns this year.

36 Play Last Game.

Tonight's game will be the last one for 36 players. Nineteen of the Whippets will be playing their last game and 17 senior Orangemen will hang up their togs.

No other games are scheduled in the vicinity tonight. Mt. Vernon and Marion have moved their game scheduled tonight back to Saturday at Mt. Vernon. Ashland and Bucyrus collided last night to avoid conflict with the Galion tiff.

There's Plenty Doing In Ohio Despite Absence of Bucks

Dayton-Ohio U., Carroll-Reserve and Wooster-Heidelberg Games Headline Home Schedule.

By FRITZ HOWELL

COLUMBUS—(AP)—Ohio State's Bucks, with a fighting chance to grab a share of the Western conference football laurels, were en route to Danville, Ill., today for Saturday's Big Ten battle with Bob Zuppke's fighting Illini at Urbana.

Just before the squad entrained for the prairie country, Coach Francis A. Schmidt sounded a warning to his charges, who were upset last week by a final Purdue surge. The droll mentor said:

Idle Two Weeks.

"An old saying is that 'an able mind is the devil's playground.' Well, Zuppke and his team have been idle, so far as games go, for two weeks. They've been getting ready for us all that time. You can bet Bob didn't spend the time brushing up on his landscape painting, so be ready for practically everything in the bag."

Then, turning to his quarterbacks, Schmidt asked: "How about all this trick stuff we've been practicing all year? The season ends in another week, and unless you're saving those tricks for a Thanksgiving day party, we'd better be using some of them. We'll need 'em at Illinois."

The Illinois-Ohio scrap is the top-notcher of an 18-game program involving Ohio grid teams Saturday, but right on the home lots the State, Buckeye and Ohio conference championships probably will be decided.

Muskingum goes to Marietta for a conference game today, advanced from Saturday.

Sharing the Saturday spotlight are the Ohio university-Dayton game at Dayton, in which the Athens Bobcats can clinch a share of the Buckeye crown; the Heidelberg-Wooster fray at Wooster, in which the host Scots are expected to roar out front in the Ohio conference race; and the John Carroll-Western Reserve fracas at Cleveland, in which the two unbeaten squads will fight it out for a firm grasp on the state title.

Lutherans at Akron.

Others contests on the slate are: Wittenberg at Akron, Baldwin-Wallace at Kent State, Mt. Union at Ohio Northern, Findlay at Ashland, Otterbein at Capital, and Oberlin at Denison in Ohio conference contests; Marshall at Cincinnati, Miami at Case, Centre at Ohio Wesleyan, Toledo at Akron, Bowling Green at Hiram, Clarion State Teachers at Youngstown, and Transylvania at Rio Grande.

Don Hutson Nears Four New Records

NEW YORK—(U.P.)—Four National Professional league football records appeared today to be within reach of the fingers of Don Hutson, Green Bay's all-America end. He already has tied his own touchdown record of nine and the Packers have two more games to play.

Having scored 56 points, he needs four more touchdowns to break the record of Jack Manders of the Chicago Bears who tallied 79 in 1934. If he can catch 13 passes to add to his 29, he will break his own record of 41 receptions set last year. He also could break Gaynell Tinsley's 675 yards gained on pass receiving by adding 169 yards to his present 507 total.

Tinsley, however, has the better chance to break Hutson's record of 41 successful receptions in one season. The Cardinals' great end has caught 31 thus far.

Ex-Teammates Line Up Against Each Other.

CHAMPAIGN, Ill.—(AP)—Illinois' right tackle and Ohio State's left tackle should have something to say to each other when they line up Saturday. Tom Riggs, the 220-pound pride of the Illini, and Alex Schoenbaum, 223-pound Buckeye, both are graduates of Huntington, W. Va., high school.

THEATERS

THE movie fans soon forgot the players who may have entertained them for years. There was Robert Woolsey, whose death was scarcely noted by the press. Woolsey, with his comedy partner, Bert Wheeler, made box office hits only a few years ago and their comedies were among the more entertaining. But they slipped in the last couple of years and so Woolsey's death wasn't worth more than a paragraph. Another recent death was that of Fred Kohler, character player and all-round screen bad man for many years.

* * *

Davis-Flynn at Madison.

Bette Davis, claimed by many critics to be the screen's finest actress, doffs the hoop-skirts of "Jezebel", comes 50 years nearer to the present time and appears in the Gibson Girl silhouette in her latest picture, "The Sisters", which opens tomorrow at the Madison. This is Myron Brinig's popular novel of the three sisters of the 1900 period, and is concerned largely with the life of the eldest of the girls. Anita Louise is the youngest who marries for love, Jane Bryan the second who marries for money. Errol Flynn is the wild, vagabonding newspaperman.

* * *

Kids In Spotlight.

Judy Garland sings three songs in "Listen Darling", feature picture at the Ohio theater, among them the popular "Zing Went the Strings of My Heart".. The other two are "On the Bumpy Road To Love" and "Ten Pins In the Sky." With Freddie Bartholomew as her partner in a Cupid plot, and little Scotty Beckett as the jammer-upper, the picture belongs to the kids, although Mary Astor and Walter Pidgeon provide the romance.

* * *

Science and Romance.

At the close of the Spanish-American war, medical science attempted to find a cure for the yellow fever in Cuba, and this provides a dramatic theme for the M-G-M picture, "Yellow Jack", at the Ritz. Virginia Bruce plays the nurse and Robert Montgomery the happy-go-lucky soldier who is willing to contribute his life to the experiment. "Mountain Music" brings Martha Raye and Bob Burns to that screen.

* * *

"Mexicali Kid."

Wesley Barry, who was a child star a number of years ago, and now playing in Western films, shares honors with Jack Randall in "Mexicali Kid," the Majestic action picture for the last two days of the week. He plays the title role in a story of the Texas rangers and a man hunt. Bing Crosby and Martha Raye in "Double or Nothing" is an additional feature.

Remember Sgt. Quirt.

With the re-issue of "Sky Devils", there comes back to the screen for a brief while the late William Boyd, stage star who created the original role of Sgt. Quirt in "What Price Glory". Boyd and Spencer Tracy have the major roles in this sky thriller, with Ann Dvorak as the girl. "Life Begins At College" is a campus story with the Three Ritz Brothers. The double-bill is at the Park.

TAX TIME AGAIN

Collection of Personal Levies Gets Under Way.

The final tax collection in Richland county this year was under way today with County Treasurer John E. Kolb collecting levies on personal property.

Delayed nearly a month, the collection will continue until Dec. 10. Statements will be mailed to more than 1,200 property owners in the county who owe $188,964 in personal tax for the last half of the year. More than half of the total charge for the year was paid last spring, the treasurer said.

Most of the tax will be paid by industrial firms which own extensive taxable equipment and building furnishings.

More than $130,000 of the tax bill will be paid by Mansfield industries and individuals. The general personal tax amounts to $139,091, while the classified levies will make up the rest, or $49,873.

O. S. R. INMATE TO TESTIFY IN DAMAGE SUITS

Youth Sentenced in 5 Traffic Deaths Figures in Actions Totalling $375,000.

Russell Plunkett, Jefferson county youth who is serving a one to 20 year sentence in the Mansfield reformatory for manslaughter, will be brought before a jury in common pleas court Monday as a defendant in a suit in which an insurance company seeks to avoid payment of $375,000 damages for the death of five persons in an automobile accident.

Five other cases, including a $2,500 damage action against the city of Mansfield, are scheduled for jury trial during the week.

Sentenced to the reformatory last December after the automobile he was driving collided with another in Jefferson county, killing five persons, Plunkett will be asked to testify Monday at the hearing of a suit brought by the Mercer - Casualty company of Celina, O.

The company had issued liability insurance on the car driven by Plunkett which the insurance firm contends was being operated by him without the consent of John Gall, the owner to whom the policy was issued.

Live In Jefferson County.

Gall and other defendants in the suit, live in Jefferson county, but the action was filed in the Richland county court because Plunkett is a prisoner in this county.

The insurance firm asks the court to release it from obligation to pay any judgments that may be awarded in six damage suits filed against Plunkett in Jefferson county as a result of the accident in May, 1937.

In the case against the city of Mansfield, set for trial Tuesday, Mrs. Mary L. Lutton, Mansfield, seeks $2,500 damages for injuries she allegedly received in March, 1937, when she stumbled and fell while crossing the Pennsylvania Railroad tracks on East Fifth street.

The railroad company is co-defendant in the action in which Mrs. Lutton contends that a trench at the side of a rail caused her to stumble.

Scheduled for trial Wednesday are cases in which Alfred Stauffer contests the will of Louis Stauffer, deceased, and the Richland county farm bureau seeks to collect a $169 account from E. L. Riggle.

The deepest place in the ocean yet found is off the Island of Mindanao in the Philippine group, where a sounding of 35,400 feet has been reported.

Goes to Senate

Running up a majority of 19,000, Gladys Pyle, former South Dakota secretary of state, won the fight for the short term U. S. senate seat in South Dakota on the Republican ticket. She succeeds Herbert H. Hitchcock, who was appointed to the office to fill out the unexpired term of the late Senator Peter Norbeck.

Books For Children

* * *

(Available at Mansfield Public Library)

"Children of the White House" is a collection of 20 short stories by Frances Cavanah and pictures by Genevieve Foster. The events are historically authentic and in a great many cases, the exact conversation is quoted.

This is a lively little book and some of the most amusing stories tell of the pillow fights the Roosevelt children had, in which their father "T. R." took an active part; of Benjamin Harrison tearing down the White House paths after his small grandson who was frantically trying to stop his goat cart, of the Garfield chidren riding their bicycles down the grand staircase, and many more tales, to make these famous children friends, for all time.

PHILATELIST BY LUCK

NEW ORLEANS — (U.P.) — Herman Herst, jr., of New York City said during the American Philatelic convention here that it was luck that put him in the stamp collecting business. While working for a bond firm, Herst, an amateur stamp collector, was looking over a dealer's collection and found a valuable stamp. He bought it for $3, paid $100 more for a bill of sale and later sold it for $3,450.

VETS' MINDS CHANGED NOW

20 Years After 'War to End Wars' Most of Them Ready to Fight Again.

was one thought firmly implanted in each soldier's mind—he would never, NEVER leave American soil to fight another war.

That was 20 years ago. Soldiers who were boys then are men today. What are they thinking today? Has their attitude changed on the subject of war? Are they interested in the affairs of Europe? A number of Mansfield men who served with the American army in Europe were asked these questions, and their answers may be taken as being representative of the attitude of veterans everywhere.

Walter L. Beckley, commander of McVey Post, American Legion, served 18 months with the air service mechanics. Today he says: "For years I have believed that under no circumstances could the United States be justified in taking part in another European war. But from recent events I have learned this, that no country can say what it will or will not do in the future. Our self-preservation might conceivably depend upon taking part in a European war. Whatever the future brings must be met and dealt with when it comes."

R. B. Gardner, vice commander of the Ohio American Legion, who served eight months overseas with the 13th Air Squadron: "I believe we should adhere to the Monroe Doctrine, and no foreign entanglement of any kind is excusable. American can be self-sustaining and in time of war in Europe we must make it our business to be self-sustaining. But if there should be another war of aggression, whether we are right or wrong,—I'll be there."

Curtis C. Flood, 166th Inf. Rainbow division, Buckeye avenue, taken prisoner by the Germans at Rastatt Baden: "I'm opposed to America taking any part in a European war, regardless of circumstances. If there's a war over there, let's stay in our own back yard and make friends with the Canadians."

Earl Saltzgaber, 11 Summit court, 11 months in France and Germany with 308 ammunition train: "A few months ago I'd have said America has no business in Europe, but since the rise of Hitler the picture has changed. In case of war between France and England on one side and Germany on the other, I think we'll have to step in whether we want to or not, as a matter of our own safety. It would be cheaper in manpower to fight our battles over there."

C. O. Lister, Ashland road, 18 months in France with the 112th ammunition train, 37th div.: "Strict neutrality is all right in theory, but human nature being what it is, the theory won't work out. We were all pretty hot under the collar about Czechoslovakia. Believe me, I was willing and ready to get out the old army gun and start in all over again. Of course I'll go if there's another American war in Europe."

Howard Neuman, 587 Park avenue west, in the ambulance service on Italian border for a year. "Nothing can ever again justify sending American soldiers to fight a European war. We don't settle anything and we gain nothing but ill-will."

Kent Oberlin, Americanization committee, American Legion, 23rd Inf., Second div. ion: "If the World war taught us one thing, it was that it is futile for us to worry about the European states. All the wars won't end the strife over there, but if there is a major conflict over there, I doubt very much if we can keep out of it in view of our foreign trade policy and secret entanglements."

Ernest Culling, 48½ Park avenue west, 93 days in front line trenches and six months in Germany with ammunition train, 89th division: "I don't want to fight in another war and I don't think our country should fight in Europe unless it's absolutely necessary to keep the dictators out of this country, but if it comes to a question of our own neck—I'd go again."

Paul Rippe, 136 Hedges street, 18 months in France as a night bomber in the air service: "Like all Americans I hope we never get mixed up in another European war, but believe me, I'd rather fight it out in Europe than over here, if we have to fight for our national preservation."

Bates expressed the belief that the dynamite had been stolen earlier in the evening from a powder magazine north of Olivesburg, owned by the Chamberlin and Henry store.

The theft was reported to Sheriff E. P. Long this morning. Long said the door on the magazine had been forced open and nine sticks of dynamite and 500 feet of fuse taken.

On a day in 1933 a dynamite explosion set off on the Arctic island of Nova Sembia was detected at Berlin, more than 2,000 miles away.

NEW BOOK RUSH SLACKING AT PUBLIC LIBRARY

Holiday Selections Not Out Yet, Week's Additions Slimmer Than Usual.

That early autumn rush of new books is slackening, and the publishers haven't brought out the Christmas selections yet, so the new reading diet at the Public Library is slimmer than it has been for the past few weeks. One of the best of the fiction selections is "All This, and Heaven Too" written by Rachel Field about a young French woman who was involved in a Paris murder scandal while employed as governess in a noble French family.

Miss Field's account of her heroine's effort in her own defense, and of her experience as the wife of a New England minister is fascinating. "The Start of the Road" by John Erskine is the much talked of book about Walt Whitman in his younger days in New Orleans, and his love for a Creole girl.

In the form of letters home from Hollywood comes the somewhat different fiction, "I Lost My Girlish Laughter." Writing under the pseudonym Jane Allen, the author tells her experience in the movie colony.

Other fiction includes "Twilight in Vienna" by Frischauer, "Empire for a Lady" by Le May; "Head in Green Bronze" by Walpole; "Bird of Bright Plumage" by Patrick; "Trial of Helen McLoed" by Parsons and "On Borrowed Time" by Watkin.

Students Turn Authors.

"Were We Guinea Pigs?" is the prize of the non-fiction offering this week, for it is the account of the class of 1938 of the University High School of Ohio State university. It is a report of 55 students who are the product of the experimental school.

Harry Emerson Fosdick turns out a valuable book for both the lay and the clergy in "A Guide to Understanding the Bible." "Nine Chains to the Moon" by R. Buckminster Fuller gives some vital new ideas for a more efficient society.

Two additions to the John Baxter Black Memorial collection are "The Age of Drake" by James A. Williamson and "The Social Life of Animals" by Warder Clyde Allee.

Other non-fiction offerings are "It Costs to Be President" by Stoddard; "General Shop Texts," by Dragoo and Dragoo; "Gas and A. C. Arc Welding and Cutting" by Jennings; "Woodworking" by Fryklund and Laberge; "Story of Jesus" by Dana; "Romance of the Great Lakes" by Donahey; "Fine Art" by Holme; "Les Coquillages" by Robert; Le Monde Des Poissons" by Robert; "My England" by Shanks; "World's Great Age" by Buck; "Fort Sumter" by Heyward and Sass; "Crossroads of the Zuider Zee" by DeLeeuw; "Eighteenth Century London Life" by Bayne-Powell and LeVolontaire" by Frondaie.

Cranberries To Stay In Luxury Class This Year

Cranberries, the necessary adjunct of the Thanksgiving dinner, will be in the luxury class this year, food merchants say. Unusually expensive now, it is possible that they may go to 25 cents a quart before the holiday.

But while this holiday fruit goes high-hat in price, there are other food items that are below-the-average this season. Green and yellow beans are slightly cheaper than usual, while broccoli, kale and mustard greens are among the least expensive dishes on the fall menu.

Hothouse tomatoes hover between 18 and 20 cents a pound and cucumbers also are higher. Cauliflower, grown in Richland county, come to the markets in firm, white heads these days, making one of the most attractive as well as satisfactory vegetable dishes.

Squash may be had in several varieties, including the old-fashioned Hubbard and the Acorne. Cabbage offers as many varieties as any vegetable on the market, for there is the regular head cabbage, savoy cabbage, celery, or Chinese cabbage, and red cabbage.

On the fruit stands there are both pink and white seedless grapefruit, citrons, persimmons, kumquats, several varieties of grapes, and for the week-end there will be pineapples and a few strawberries.

Soil experts estimate 76,000,000 acres of land that are now being cropped in the United States should be taken out of cultivation.

Beware Coughs from common colds That Hang On

No matter how many medicines you have tried for your common cough, chest cold, or bronchial irritation, you may get relief now with Creomulsion. Serious trouble may be brewing and you cannot afford to take a chance with any remedy less potent than Creomulsion, which goes right to the seat of the trouble and aids nature to soothe and heal the inflamed mucous membranes and to loosen and expel germ-laden phlegm.

Even if other remedies have failed, don't be discouraged, try Creomulsion. Your druggist is authorized to refund your money if you are not thoroughly satisfied with the benefits obtained. Creomulsion is one word, ask for it plainly, see that the name on the bottle is Creomulsion, and you'll get the genuine product and the relief you want. (Adv.)

SEEKS TO SELL STREET BONDS

City Auditor Asks Bids on $19,350 Issue to Finance Cost of Improvements.

City Auditor Paul L. Kelley today called for bids on the sale of $19,350 in street assessment bonds, issued in anticipation of the collection of the property owner's share of the cost of improvements on nine city streets.

Kelley said that sealed proposals will be accepted at his office in the city building until 1 p. m. Nov. 25. The bids must state the number of bonds bid for and the gross amount of the bid and accrued interest to date of delivery.

There are 26 bonds in denominations ranging from $200 to $1,000, all of which will draw an interest rate of 6 per cent annually. Payments are to be made semi-annually on April 1 and Oct. 1.

The $19,350 will be used to finance the property owner's share of the cost of the construction of sanitary sewers, paving, resurfacing, grading and graveling and for the construction of combination curbs and gutters.

The improvements include the construction of a sanitary sewer on Chilton road costing $1,400; reconstruction of Central avenue, $1,850; sanitary sewer on Lawnview avenue, $1,200; Marion avenue paving, $1,850; North Mulberry street paving, $4,050; Overlook avenue sanitary sewer, $1,250; West Second street paving, $2,400; Springmill street resurfacing, $4,400; Remy avenue grading, $950.

No more high-priced clothes for me..look at this style and quality for $22.50

We admit it! Many of our customers first tried Richman's Clothes because of our very modest price. They wanted to economize, and we helped them.
But...while our low price first attracted them... our quality and style and fit keep them wearing Richman Brothers Clothes long after the need for economy is past.
The proof is that many of our customers are men who could afford to pay a great deal more than $22.50 for their clothes—and would pay more if it were necessary.
But it isn't necessary. Richman Brothers Clothes give them everything they could get in expensive clothes—finest all-wool fabrics, high class tailoring and perfect fit.
We think that's a sensible way to buy clothes. Don't you?—Try it, and be your own judge.

CAT GETS NIGHTLY RAT

PITTSBURG, Cal.—(LE)—Mrs. Myrtle Ewald, proprietor of the Alpine hotel, is authority for the statement that Mercy, the hotel's 4-year-old Persian cat, has brought home a rat every night for the past two years. The only variations have been the occasional nights when it brought back two rats instead of one.

Advantage In Republican Gains.

AMERICANS who are inclined to think along other than partisan lines can scarcely fail to feel gratified by the outcome of this week's elections, which went a long way toward restoring a voting balance in the two major political parties.

Two years ago, when only Maine and Vermont went Republican and when President Roosevelt was given what he interpreted as a "mandate" to enforce his will on congress and the supreme court, as well as in the executive department, it may have seemed that the Republican party was as "dead" as the Democratic party appeared to be in 1920 and on several other occasions.

That would have been unfortunate. No better form of representative government has yet been developed than that in which two large political parties are so evenly balanced in voting strength as to serve as a curb upon each other, rather than that either should assume dictatorial authority, as has been done by New Deal zealots.

The political party out of power should always be maintained in sufficient strength to serve as an ever-present threat against evils that are inclined to develop within the temporarily dominant party, so that changes can be made in orderly fashion when deemed advisable.

Existence of such condition in a number of states was clearly evidenced at last Tuesday's elections.

While Republicans will continue as a minority in congress it will be a considerably strengthened and much encouraged minority, with the force of anti-New Deal Democrats to aid in correcting errors of the past six years and at least partially repairing the damage that has been done by the wild extravagances and impractical policies of the present federal administration.

Greatest hope for the immediate future will be that President Roosevelt will recognize the reasons for the widespread trend away from the support accorded him two years ago, and that he will attempt to conform, during the remainder of his term, with sounder governmental policies than some of those he has espoused in the past.

Such a course on his part, coupled with quick action by congress in matters of corrective legislation, would serve to hasten the steps toward recovery, which awaits only a restoration of public confidence.

Will Continue to Elect Judges.

DEFEAT of the proposal to substitute appointment of state supreme court and court of appeals judges for the present elective system leaves no doubt of an inclination on the part of voters to retain the privilege of choosing judicial, as well as executive and legislative officials.

Sponsored largely by attorneys, the proposed appointive methods of selecting judges of the higher Ohio courts was as strongly opposed by some members of the legal profession as it was supported by others.

This is another of the instances in which theory clashed with experience in the matter of claims that an appointive system for judges would bring improvement in quality and serve to further divorce the judiciary from the influence of partisan politics.

Possibly the example presented by the appointment of Hugo Black to the United States supreme court may have been accepted as evidence of the dangerous potentialities of such procedure.

In any event, Ohio voters decided by a decisive majority to continue election of judges on a non-partisan ballot, as is now being done, rather than chance the workings of politics in the proposed appointive method.

It is claimed that many voters have no idea of the comparative qualifications of competing candidates for judgeships. This claim is supported by the fact that at Tuesday's election in Ohio around 600,000 fewer judicial ballots were marked than the total of party ballots. This would indicate that those who knew nothing about candidates for judges merely did not mark that ballot, but that somewhat more than 1,750,000 voters were able to express intelligent preferences as to chief justice and judges of the court of appeals.

Economy or Insolvency.

CHRONIC deficits mean but one thing—insolvency And whether it concerns an individual, a business or a nation, insolvency denotes ruin, inexorable and final.

The federal government has not balanced its budget for nearly a decade. It has reached the "chronic deficit" stage. The politicians, although they feel that it is dangerous to try to seize any more of the people's wealth in the form of taxes, cannot resist the temptation to spend more and more borrowed public money on the plea that the country is wealthy and need have no fear of a huge debt! Such a plea is an insult to the intelligence of the American people.

Of course the country is wealthy. If it were not, the squandering officeholders would have wrecked it long ago. But this wealth admittedly cannot all be confiscated in the form of taxes to pay the debts of government. The extreme limit of this kind of seizure has about been reached—hence government tax income is nearly at the maximum until the day when more wealth is created.

The only alternative is to decrease expenses, if insolvency of the federal government is to be avoided.

Beckoning Homeland.

ROBERT LEY, German labor front leader, says the Reich wants its emigrants to return to the Fatherland. This means its pure Aryan emigrants, and only such of those who are not exiles because of their liberal views. Herr Ley adds that 2,000 emigrants are to be repatriated soon as the first step of a program to "overcome an acute labor shortage." He tells workers who left Germany during the depression years that they will now find there both work and bread.

It might be a good thing all around if Germans in other countries, who have not become naturalized, who agree with Nazi theories and are in sympathy with Nazi action, should accept this invitation and go home.

As an election aftermath, it may be noted that President Roosevelt's appeal to the voters in his own district resulted in a majority for the other side.

Watching Trends

—By PRESTON GROVER

WASHINGTON—At the time the utilities industry seems to be just edging out of the woods after three years of executive punishment, it may be enlightening to point to another industry which, wise about courting public favor, has spent the last three years with very little public spanking. It is the liquor industry.

The present alcohol control act was passed in 1935—the same year as the public utility holding company act. In only a few cases has it been carried into court. Of some 3,000 violations, only two or three hundred ever got publicity. In no instance did the fanfare over a liquor administration case compare with the excitement stirred up over the utilities "death sentence" litigation.

* * *

Has Own Whipping Post.

THE alcohol control law provides its own whipping post for recalcitrant liquor interests but with rare exceptions the whipping is administered in private.

The alcohol administration, itself educated by an effort to operate under the NIRA codes, largely wrote its own bill and it was passed by congress with little change. Part of it was modeled after earlier income tax procedure followed by the treasury.

Under the system, most violations of liquor control regulations may be quietly compromised between the government and the offending operator, in the same way as certain income tax delinquencies. It saves embarrassment to the industry and to the individual liquor operator, and gives the administration a tool for control with which it seems well satisfied.

Suppose Joe Doakes is a representative in Indiana and Illinois for the Spivis Hot-Mix Cocktail company. He is introducing a new line of liquor and finds the going tough. So he suggests to a few wholesalers that he will pay their salesmen $1 a case bonus to push hot-mix cocktails.

Sales speed up. As usual however, some other company learns what is going on and complains to the administration. Bonuses are illegal. The administration hauls the Hot-Mix company on the carpet.

* * *

There's a Reckoning.

IF THE Hot-Mix company can demonstrate that Joe Doakes paid the illegal bonus without any authority from the head office, the penalty may be light. It usually isn't levied as a flat fine. The company is advised by letter that due to the non-willful nature of its violation the administration will accept a compromise. It points out that another company in a similar fix squared itself by paying $250 into the treasury.

Not all get off that easy. Where the company willfully violates the law by an illegal plan of advertising, or faking labels, or like evils, it is pretty likely to be publicly cited. Very few lose permits but two score or more have been suspended. A suspension of 90 days might put an operator out of business.

The amount of the fine is never published. One $10,000 fine was collected in 1936, and a few $5,000 fines have been taken since. Collections for 1937 fiscal year were $14,535 and climbed to $44,316 for the 1938 fiscal year ending last July.

Lately the number of "compromise penalties" has decreased but the few levied have become stiffer. The administration explains simply that in the early months of the act a period of education was allowed. During the past year or so it has been getting harder-nosed.

ARMISTICE DAY

Probe of Hopkins' WPA Assured

—By CHARLES P. STEWART

WASHINGTON, D. C.—Harry L. Hopkins' Works Progress Administration is pretty sure to be searchingly investigated by congress in the course of the legislators' next session, beginning in January.

The White House will not like it, of course, but it is hard to see how it can squelch the quiz. The Republican lawmakers naturally will be ravenous for it. So will those Democrats who believe that the administration unsuccessfully sought to "purge" them out of renominations. So also will those Democratic senators whose seats were not a stake this year, but who surmise that they will be on the "purge" list in the 1940 primaries—or in 1942, if the New Dealers still are in power then.

Just as naturally, the New Dealers on Capitol Hill will object to an inquisition. They won't admit that they are afraid of it, and maybe they will not be afraid of it, in fact, but they will argue that it is wholly unnecessary, and will be a pest—just reactionary political "medicine making."

However, the Republicans and Old Deal Democrats will be in a majority, combined, and it's big odds that they will have their way.

Thick Clouds of Smoke.

Perhaps the prospective investigators will uncover no fire in the insides of WPA, but there's no doubt that there's plenty of smoke.

Chairman Morris Sheppard of the senate's committee on investigation of campaign crookedness charges has reported his observation of oodles of such fumes—and Sheppard's a New Dealer. The honesty of his campaign findings is enough to semi-restore one's faith in the integrity of public men. It will be a hard task for hush-hushers to ignore his story of WPA's primary and election day methods.

Big batches of indictments in a couple of states and pending grand jury activities in several others forecast more of the same. True, the indicted individuals are not guilty until they are proved to be so—but it's smoke, and a smudge, more of it arises in the background.

Something like eight or 10 seats are certain to be contested in the next congress, upon grounds of primary or election irregularities. It used to be that ONE such contest was a public scandal. Now they're due wholesale.

The Dies quiz has mussed up the situation considerably. For myself, I think it has been an asinine performance, but it appears to have been popular. A few nights ago Representative Dies went on the air in defense of his investigation. Paul Y. Anderson, a newspaperman, was drafted by the New Deal to answer him—though Dies is a Democrat too. Fan mail, broadcasters tell me, ha been 10 or 20-to-1 pro-Dies — literally overwhelmingly pro-Dies.

As to Hopkins.

But as to Harry Hopkins? He and his WPA particularly will be investigated.

I don't imagine that Harry will be caught in any deliberately-intended irregularities.

He has an enormous organization under him. He can't keep track of it in detail. In a general way, I'm convinced that he wants to keep it according to Hoyle, like a community chest.

But I do have my doubts that he's a suitability for the presidency of the United States—a post I'm convinced he's shooting at.

Timely Editorial

Strike Averted.

The Railroad Labor Act of 1926 again has demonstrated its worth as an aid to rational labor relations. When railroad management last week yielded to the adverse report of the president's fact-finding board and abandoned the proposed 15 percent wage cut, a national rail strike was averted. But also, let us not forget, one more example was added to hundreds in the history of this law showing the feasibility of settling labor disputes by impartial examination of the issues.

The central feature of the law, it should be noted, is the waiting period. No definite period is set, but strikes may not be called until mediation has been tried or, if that fails, until a president's board has examined and reported on the facts. Few disputes in the 12 years of the law's operation have gone so far as to require the naming of such a board.

This is by all odds the most successful legislation of its sort in operation in this country. The experience gained under it merits the attention of all who are concerned with advancing the cause of better labor relations in industry generally.—Detroit News.

Health Advice

Causes of Kidney Disorders.

—By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

IN DISCUSSING the physiology of the kidney yesterday, we compared the kidney unit to the track of an automobile factory, with the kidney cells representing the workers, each of whom does his bit to the car as it slowly moves towards completion.

If any of these workers get sick, there is some disorder. In the factory they can replace the ailing worker, but it is not so simple in the case of kidney cells.

It is obvious that the nature of the disturbance will depend on which workers are disabled. If those which remove water from the blood are low in efficency, fluid in excess will accumulate in the blood and seep out into the tissue spaces, so that what is called "dropsy", supervenes. If those which remove the nitrogenous end products—urea, uric acid, creatinine—degenerate, then these products accumulate in the blood, giving rise to various kinds of uremia. If those which remove the buffer substances, which maintain the neutrality of the blood, are out of commission, then varying grades of acidosis occur.

Brights' Disease.

These are the different symptoms and effects of nephritis, often called Bright's disease, after Richard Bright, who described them at Guy's Hospital, London, about 100 years ago.

It may be asked, what causes the kidney cells to degenerate and bring about this state of affairs? The toxins of some of the infectious diseases, especially scarlet fever, will do it. The poisons generated in the body of the expectant mother, in many cases, will do it. Eclampsia, while it is a complicated disease, is partly of kidney origin. Metallic poisons, such as mercury and lead, are potent but infrequent causes. And then there is an undefined toxin for which we have no better name than "catching cold," which shows how ignorant we are.

Another Possibility.

There is one other possibility, more frequent than all the rest. The kidney cells remove their poisons from the blood stream, and in order to do so they surround the fine capillary blood vessel tufts that exist in the kidney and are so beautifully designed to co-operate with them. Now it is possible that the kidney cells are all right, but that the blood vessels become hardened, so that the kidney cells cannot do thier work. This is the type of nephritis that is associated with high blood pressure.

What can be done in the way of treatment? Well, in the first place, the situation is almost never as gloomy as might be inferred from the foregoing description. Almost never do all of the kidney cells completely go to pieces. There is always a partial function and this may be enough to allow the body to carry on at half time, if too much is not expected.

Commentary On Growing Old.

You could not grow old for me;
Always, as in youth,
I shall see your lineage,
This to me be truth.

Never could you age for me;
Laughter that I knew
This remains the same, your smile
Reminiscent, too.

With the dream we both have kept
In our hearts, a dream
We are lucky to have known,
Love that is supreme.

This will keep you young for me
Always, young and fair
Years will make no difference,
Lines they bring of care.

These my eyes will never see.
Always you in youth
I shall hold, heart of my heart,
This is you, in truth.

A Farmer's Diary

The Star Player.

—By CALVIN A. BYERS

I SAW it happen after a football game, in a neighboring country town. Just as the crowd began to surge out from the field and cross the street, an old farmer and his wife, in a creaking buggy, with a lean white horse, came slowly down the hill. It had rained a while before, and the leaves scattered thinly over the bricks were very slippery.

The shouting startled the bony old horse as he came to the intersection, and when he attempted to shy sidewise, he slipped and slid in a heap into the gutter, where he made a vain effort to regain his footing.

Things happened very fast. The old man in the buggy—he must have been eighty—spoke reassuringly to the animal. The old lady, motionless and pale, put one large-fingered wrinkled hand across her eyes.

"There's a rack o' bones for the fertilizer works," said a half-grown boy, pointing and laughing.

"Rigs like that are a traffic nuisance," said an older man, chewing a cigar. "What right have they to clutter up the streets?"

I started to elbow through the crowd, but before I could reach the spot, an automobile loaded with victorious high school boys came along. They were a hilarious bunch. Their honking horn terrorized the old horse still more, and he raised up on his forefeet and struggled vainly to get up. Then something splendid happened.

The driver of the car, a brawny country lad with a high school letter on his sweater front, stopped his car, and hopped out. "Get out here, guys, and lend a hand," he said. "Four of us'll get on that side, and four on this. Here kid!" he spoke to the gaping boy who had called the horse a rack o' bones, "you got muscle—stand here by me and do like I do. We'll pick him up and stand him on his feet."

They did it. The old animal moved stiffly away, on unsteady legs. The old man put up a grateful hand and said "God bless you, boys."

My own eyes were moist. My old parents used to ride in a rig like that.

How It Started

—By JEAN NEWTON

"Comedown"—A Notable Reverse.

It was at the peace conference in Versailles that Georges Clemenceau then French premier, upon being introduced to Paderewski, then Polish premier, paid to the great pianist one of the finest and subtlest compliments that the renowned musician had ever received.

"So now," remarked Clemenceau, "you are the premier of your country. What a comedown!"

"Comedown," a sort of combination verbal noun phrase connoting humiliating descent, downfall or notable reverse has been in our language, both literary and colloquial for at least three hundred and fifty years.

Its present form springs from its 16th century usage in the figure of speech Castle (of) Comedown for an edifice that has come to ruin.

Comparatively modern in both sense and form is the usage in the classic work (1846) "Before the Mast" by Dana, in the line:

"This was a great comedown, from the highest seat in the synagogue to a seat in the galley.

Listen, World!

How Good Are Good-Natured People?

—By ELSIE ROBINSON

I USED to admire Good Natured People greatly.

Being part Mick myself—and quick to sizzle at the slightest provocation—I both respected and envied those smiling persons who went through life serenely . . . who emerged unruffled from even the pestiest provocation. Great Guys! What philosophical minds and welded wills they must possess to take life so calmly in their stride! If only I could be as amiable as that! If only I could refuse to let a million and one things get my goat!

So, for many a year I regarded my Good Natured Neighbors. And such, I realize, is the approved method of conducting one's own life. Nevertheless, I no longer admire the Chronic Smiler. To the contrary, I suspect there is something gravely amiss with the mortal who can remain placid while contemplating the agony and horror of our current life.

Just where, I wonder, did the notion start that Civilized Citizens should never see red? Who, I'd like to know, authorized the Pollyanna racket and started giving gum drops to good little boys and girls who never, never, NEVER GOT MAD . . . and always saw The Silver Lining in Every Dark Cloud? I admit the idea listens lovely to the Young Dreamer who, as yet, knows nothing of Life As Is. But, personally, such chronic good nature, in an adult, seems both cowardly and contemptible.

There are occasions, I protest, when it's the plain duty of every decent citizen to see red—and act accordingly. Nor do these occasions involve private affairs . . . the defense of a personally beloved person or place. They may be concerned with abstract problems far removed from our individual programs—

IF IT'S UP TO A MAN TO DEFEND THE PERSON HE LOVES IT'S EQUALLY UP TO HIM TO DEFEND THE PRINCIPLE IN WHICH HE BELIEVES . . . AND TO DO SO WITH EVERY OUNCE OF STEAM HE CARRIES!

As for this "Silver Lining" notion . . . Frankly, I'm against the whole idea. I do not believe in tolerating clouds, even if they have silver linings—which I'm convinced most of them haven't. And I'm sure that the whole slogan is just another camouflage for the ugly fact that we'd rather Talk Pretty about Clouds than clean them up.

There is not the slightest proof that God ever intended us to bear burdens which we could eliminate. To the contrary, there is endless evidence to show that the favors are for the fighters—and the rewards for those who rebel against muck and misery.

Wherefore I'm convinced that if we'd spend a third as much time cleaning up the clouds as we do in looking for their silver linings, life would be a much sweller proposition all around.

And never has that fact been as apparent—or that obligation been as pressing—as it is today. We are in the midst of international brutalities, betrayals, barbarisms. Honor has been fouled . . . decency has been thrown overboard. Our whole human record stinks to high heaven. No thoughtful person can contemplate this with serenity . . . no self-respecting person can feel anything but outraged and heartsick.

CHRONIC GOOD NATURE IS NO LONGER A VIRTUE—

IT IS A YELLOW FLAG—

THE CERTAIN PROOF THAT ONE IS EITHER A SELF CENTERED EGOTIST OR A COMPLACENT COWARD!

Man About Manhattan

—By GEORGE TUCKER

NEW YORK—Without any desire to frighten the angels away from my friends on Broadway I must express the opinion that playing the horses is a much safer gamble than investing your money in a New York nightclub.

In an average horserace there are only six or seven entries, and you've got a chance for win, place or show. But under the mazdas, where only the nose counts, the odds against you are at least 15 to 1.

There are a lot of supposedly successful nightclubs in Manhattan but under the confetti, they aren't so well off. They take in a lot of money and they make a big show, but only in a few instances are the operators able to relax for a moment without feeling the breath of a receiver on their necks. Four new clubs which opened recently are due to fold within a month. A dozen others are in the red. There must be 50 between 42nd street and Harlem, and yet I would wager that not three are making money.

* * *

WHY is this? Well, when you open a nightclub in New York you buck a machine. You never hear the names of the owners of some of the clubs, and when you ask questions, which is never wise, you receive such vague answers as "a corporation owns it," and things like that.

Reduced to its least common denominator it means the money for these clubs is put up by "the mob." For gangsters still and always will have their hands in after dark traffic on Broadway.

Another item to consider is rental, which almost always is prohibitive. There are fat lawyer fees to pay, unions to do business with, electricians, waiters, musicians, managers, chefs, silverware, china, theatrical talent, bar-tenders, liquor, insurance and a hundred other things which ravage a bankroll like fever.

And when you do all this what have you got? You've got an expensively decorated room on your hands. You've got a bunch of tables with white covers on them, and you are paying salaries to two name bands, one for swing music, another for rhumba

* * *

THEN the customer comes in (if you're lucky) and buys a few drinks at 90 cent sa throw. As for his dinner—here are some menu prices glimpsed at a popular club the other night: broiled sirloin steak—$5.50 . . . roast Long Island duckling—$4 . . . half Maryland chicken — $3.50 . . . roast beef—$3.75 . . . turkey—$4.25 . . . old fashioned cocktail—90 cents . . . scotch and soda—90 cents . . . rye and soda—90 cents, etc.

Not many people like to pay this kind of prices unless the atmosphere and the entertainment are extraordinary. And only one out of a dozen can be extraordinary, for there isn't an abundance of superior talent, even on Broadway.

And so, with the exception of the confirmed spenders and the visiting firemen who doesn't know what he is getting into, there aren't enough people who will pay these prices (necessitated by the overhead) to keep a nightclub floating.

That is why I would far rather sink a fortune on a horse than funnel it into the pockets of the thousand and one go-betweens, the middlemen and the grafters, on a Broadway venture. At least at the track you get a run for your money. On Broadway you don't even get that.

NEW WOODLAND WATER PROJECT NEARLY READY

150,000 Gallon Water Tank Gets Coat of Paint, New Pumps Being Installed.

The $75,000 Woodland improvement in the Mansfield water distribution system was nearing completion today.

Only a handful of workmen left on the job were putting the finishing touches on the 150,000-gallon storage tank and winding up their work on the installation of the booster pumps at the reservoir.

WPA workmen early this week completed the new high speed main connections on Lexington avenue and Cook road and employes of the Chicago Bridge and Iron Works were painting the huge water tower both inside and out.

Meanwhile the Purdy Construction company was engaged in the installation of booster pumps designed to maintain a greater pressure in the Woodland area.

Ready By End of Month.

Alvin C. Mock, city engineer in charge of the project, said that the first water probably would be turned into the new link in the system shortly after Thanksgiving.

Mock explained that the tower had been given a leak test this week and found to be satisfactory. The huge basin is now receiving a special coat of rust resisting paint on the interior while two coats of aluminum paint is being applied to the exterior.

When the paint has set, the tank and mains will be flushed out with sterile solution, Mock said.

The contract for the tank was awarded to the Chicago firm on its low bid of $14,790 while Purdy was awarded the contract for the changes to be made at the reservoir pumphouse and the installation of the pumps on his bid of $4,025.

The other $64,000 was used to purchase the pipe for the Lexington avenue-Cook road line and furnished employment for nearly 200 WPA workers for the past three months.

LONDON—(INS)—With memory vividly reawakened to the horrors of war by the recent European crisis, Britain today commemorated the 20th anniversary of the armistice by paying homage to her million war dead with greater solemnity and reverence than ever before.

ANKARA, Turkey—Gen. Ismet Inonu was elected by the national assembly today to succeed his late friend and long-time comrade, Kemal Ataturk, as president of Turkey.

The new leader, known as the "military bookkeeper," was Premier for 13 of the 15 years that Ataturk was head of the state.

BIGGER PENSION DRIVE LOOMING FOR CONGRESS

3 Plans to Be Proposed in Battle to Revive Social Security Provisions.

(By International News Service)

WASHINGTON — A battle for bigger old-age pensions, together with substitution of a pay-as-you-go policy for the present program, appeared to confront the administration today.

The General Welfare federation asserted that Tuesday's election results indicate that a majority of the members of congress favors larger old-age pensions.

The federation, formed during the revolt against Dr. F. E. Townsend, did not claim a majority for its program. It also said an analysis of the election returns showed that 100 candidates endorsed by Townsend, author of the $200 a month scheme, had gone down to defeat.

Offer 3 Proposals.

Three pension proposals, it appeared, will be proposed in the battle to revise the old-age provisions of the Social Security act. They are:

1. Bilbo plan, proposed by Senator Bilbo (D., Miss.), providing maximum $60 a month pensions. Bilbo asserts that President Roosevelt will approve the plan if Bilbo can devise tax-raising methods.

2. General Welfare plan, which calls for a 2 per cent transactions tax to replace present taxes, pensions to be based upon the amount of revenue produced by the tax.

3. Townsend plan, with a $200 a month goal, also being based on a transactions tax.

The battle over old-age pensions is expected to begin in January. With the administration proposing to broaden the Social Security program, to bring in farm workers and domestics, and perhaps inaugurate a system of health insurance, pension advocates are certain to have a chance to demonstrate their strength.

"The election results show a definite majority favorable to a more sound, adequate, pay-as-you-go pension program, or sympathetic to objectives of such a program," said a federation statement.

A canvass of incomplete returns, the federation said, showed 141 members elected favor a more liberal old-age pension plan.

The federation claimed that 16 senators, who pledged themselves to more liberal pensions, were elected. These include Senator Claude Pepper (D., Fla.), a New Dealer and backer of the Townsend plan, and Sheridan Downey (D., Cal.), backer of the $30-every-Thursday plan.

Many Republicans supported the Townsend or similar programs, while many New England Republicans limited themselves to saying that they would seek a fair hearing in congress for the Townsend or federation proposals.

"Radicals, Nuts" Harbored by Dems Davey Says In Talk

AKRON — (INS) — The 45th annual meeting of the Ohio Chamber of Commerce, which last night heard Governor Davey criticize the Democratic party for harboring "all the radicals and nuts in the United States," turned its attention today to group forums.

The convention was to wind up with an address by Merle Thorpe, editor of the Nations Business.

Davey, defeated in the August primaries, is himself a Democrat.

"Tax oppression," the governor said, "is dragging down new business in this country, and national innovations have been presented so fast the people have not had time to get used to them.

"I believe with all my heart that, if the American people could be assured of a period of peace, we would enter a period of prosperity the like of which this nation never knew before," Davey asserted.

In regard to Tuesday's sweeping Republican victory, Davey said:

"I have sensed that the people wanted to be left alone to readjust themselves and learn how to live under the new order."

"We Democrats," Davey declared, "in recent years have taken to our bosoms all the radicals and nuts in the United States and have made everyone else uneasy."

A. F. OF L. SETS $4,000 INCOME AS GOAL FOR AMERICAN LABOR

(By United Press)

WASHINGTON—Citing a "vigorous upward trend" in business, the American Federation of Labor today proposed a minimum annual income of $4,000 per family as the goal for American workers

The Federation's monthly business survey—the most optimistic in months—urged labor officials to watch for opportunities to demand wage increases so that union members may "share these gains." It also proposed a study of consumer needs which, it was believed, the AFL may propose at the next session of congress.

The survey said that this country's major problem was to lift production to maximum levels. Warning that "government control is here to stay," it said that "businessmen who hold back production to wait for the freedom of pre-depression are rebelling against the inevitable."

The Federation's $4,000 income proposal was predicated on "maximum production rightly distributed, and a "new conception of wages—wages based on producing power with machines" rather than "human skills and energy alone." It contended that higher incomes were possible for those in more responsible positions.

"Our American economy can achieve a $4,000 income for every family," it said. "But there is no get-rich-quick way of doing this. Nor is there any panacea that will accomplish it."

The AFL outlined three steps which will "bring us nearer this goal."

1. Trade union organization, already begun, throughout industry and a steady and rapid increase in wages

2. More consideration for the consumer—"the key man of the power age."

3. A production program devised in a "democratic" way by representatives of business, labor, distribution agents, consumers and government officials to make possible "sustained mass production with high standards of living for all."

CYCLIST HURT IN COLLISION

Youth Suffers Fractured Leg In Crash on North Main Street.

A 21-year-old Mansfield youth was in General hospital today with a fractured leg sustained when the motorcycle he was riding collided with an automobile on North Main street yesterday afternoon.

The injured man is William J. Boldt, 53 Gibson avenue, who collided with a machine driven by Gus Witt, 599 Bowman street, as Witt was making a left turn into the Ohio Brass company, police said. Both machines were traveling in opposite directions and collided nearly headon, the motorcycle landing under Witt's car.

A wrecker was called to separate the two vehicles while Boldt was taken to the hospital in a police cruiser.

Hears Windsors To Get Palace Bid For Christmas Holiday

PARIS — (UP) — Friends of the Duke and Duchess of Windsor expressed belief that the Duke and Duchess of Gloucester, who arrived in Paris today, brought an invitation for the former king and his American-born wife to spend Christmas with the royal family in England.

The Gloucesters, homeward bound from an East African hunting trip, flew from Marseille to Le Bourget airport in the royal family's private plane and immediately motored to the Hotel Meurice, temporary home of the Windsors.

There they went at once to the Windsor's suite, where the former King Edward VIII and his second younger brother met for the first time since the former's abdication nearly two years ago.

The Duke of Windsor and his American-born duchess—the former Wallis Warfield, for whom he gave up the throne Dec. 10, 1936, and whom he married June 3, 1937, rose early today to prepare for the arrival of the duke and duchess.

NEW WOODLAND WATER PROJECT NEARLY READY

150,000 Gallon Water Tank Gets Coat of Paint, New Pumps Being Installed.

The $75,000 Woodland improvement in the Mansfield water distribution system was nearing completion today.

Only a handful of workmen left on the job were putting the finishing touches on the 150,000-gallon storage tank and winding up their work on the installation of the booster pumps at the reservoir.

WPA workmen early this week completed the new high speed main connections on Lexington avenue and Cook road and employes of the Chicago Bridge and Iron Works were painting the huge water tower both inside and out.

Meanwhile the Purdy Construction company was engaged in the installation of booster pumps designed to maintain a greater pressure in the Woodland area.

Ready By End of Month.

Alvin C. Mock, city engineer in charge of the project, said that the first water probably would be turned into the new link in the system shortly after Thanksgiving.

Mock explained that the tower had been given a leak test this week and found to be satisfactory. The huge basin is now receiving a special coat of rust resisting paint on the interior while two coats of aluminum paint is being applied to the exterior.

When the paint has set, the tank and mains will be flushed out with sterile solution, Mock said.

The contract for the tank was awarded to the Chicago firm on its low bid of $14,790 while Purdy was awarded the contract for the changes to be made at the reservoir pumphouse and the installation of the pumps on his bid of $4,025.

The other $64,000 was used to purchase the pipe for the Lexington avenue-Cook road line and furnished employment for nearly 200 WPA workers for the past three months.

KING PLACES WREATH

LONDON—(INS)—With memory vividly reawakened to the horrors of war by the recent European crisis, Britain today commemorated the 20th anniversary of the armistice by paying homage to her million war dead with greater solemnity and reverence than ever before.

Bare-headed thousands stood in silence as King George VI, in the name of the empire, placed a wreath of red Flanders poppies at the base of the cenotaph, the nation's unified war memorial in Whitehall here.

DETROIT—(INS)—Optimism, incorporated in the prediction that Detroit families will buy 1,000 new and used automobiles a day from now until the end of the year, was the keynote of the Detroit automobile show opening today.

Willis H. Hall, board of commerce economist, told 1,000 salesmen at a Masonic temple breakfast that a "one-in-five" sampling of 350,000 families in the city indicated 64,279 cars will be sold in the next 60 days—or, a little better than 1,000 cars a day.

"And," Sawyer grinned, "we were, weren't we?"

RAIN AND COLDER ON WAY

Another November "heat wave" was in the making today, but the weatherman said it would be short-lived, probably ending with rain and colder weather by Saturday night. CALLS FOR BIDS

Board to Open Estimates on New Junior High Dec. 9.

With plans and specifications for the new Johnny Appleseed Junior high school tentatively approved by regional PWA officials, the Mansfield board of education today asked for contractors' bids on the $450,000 building, a part of the city's $1,000,000 school program.

Bids on the construction, plumbing, heating and eelctric wiring for the structure will be opened Dec. 9, and Supt. W. L. Miller said actual construction probably would be started before Jan. 1.

The board will ask for bids in December on the new John Simpson Junior high school and razing of the old John Simpson building is scheduled to begin soon after the first of the year.

Bids on the razing of the old building and construction of the new one will be requested at the same time.

INONU TURKEY'S NEW PRESIDENT

Former Premier, Long Friend of Ataturk, Elected by National Assembly.

ANKARA, Turkey—Gen. Ismet Inonu was elected by the national assembly today to succeed his late friend and long-time comrade, Kemal Ataturk, as president of Turkey.

Ataturk, who died yesterday, once said of Inonu—a performer and strong man in his own right—that "he is my conscience—he is always on the alert and finds out what is wrong and criticizes me."

The new leader, known as the "military bookkeeper," was Premier for 13 of the 15 years that Ataturk was head of the state.

The strong-willed, deaf little Pasha was chosen at an extraordinary session of parliament sitting in Ankara, Ataturk's self-made capital.

STILL CONFIDENT

DES MOINES, Ia.—(UP)—J. H. Milroy, Republican state chairman, predicted today that former Senator Lester J. Dickinson, R., will win the U. S. senatorial contest over Sen. Guy M. Gillette, incumbent Democrat, when an official canvass of Tuesday's balloting is complete.

BIGGER PENSION DRIVE LOOMING FOR CONGRESS

3 Plans to Be Proposed in Battle to Revive Social Security Provisions.

(By International News Service)

WASHINGTON — A battle for bigger old-age pensions, together with substitution of a pay-as-you-go policy for the present program, appeared to confront the administration today.

The General Welfare federation asserted that Tuesday's election results indicate that a majority of the members of congress favors larger old-age pensions.

The federation, formed during the revolt against Dr. F. E. Townsend, did not claim a majority for its program. It also said an analysis of the election returns showed that 100 candidates endorsed by Townsend, author of the $200 a month scheme, had gone down to defeat.

Offer 3 Proposals.

Three pension proposals, it appeared, will be proposed in the battle to revise the old-age provisions of the Social Security act. They are:

1. Bilbo plan, proposed by Senator Bilbo (D., Miss.), providing maximum $60 a month pensions. Bilbo asserts that President Roosevelt will approve the plan if Bilbo can devise tax-raising methods.

2. General Welfare plan, which calls for a 2 per cent transactions tax to replace present taxes, pensions to be based upon the amount of revenue produced by the tax.

3. Townsend plan, with a $200 a month goal, also being based on a transactions tax.

The battle over old-age pensions is expected to begin in January. With the administration proposing to broaden the Social Security program, to bring in farm workers and domestics, and perhaps inaugurate a system of health insurance, pension advocates are certain to have a chance to demonstrate their strength.

"The election results show a definite majority favorable to a more sound, adequate, pay-as-you-go pension program, or sympathetic to objectives of such a program," said a federation statement.

A canvass of incomplete returns, the federation said, showed 141 members elected favor a more liberal old-age pension plan.

The federation claimed that 16 senators, who pledged themselves to more liberal pensions, were elected. These include Senator Claude Pepper (D., Fla.), a New Dealer and backer of the Townsend plan, and Sheridan Downey (D., Cal.), backer of the $30-every-Thursday plan.

Many Republicans supported the Townsend or similar programs, while many New England Republicans limited themselves to saying that they would seek a fair hearing in congress for the Townsend or federation proposals.

"Radicals, Nuts" Harbored by Dems Davey Says In Talk

AKRON — (INS) — The 45th annual meeting of the Ohio Chamber of Commerce, which last night heard Governor Davey criticize the Democratic party for harboring "all the radicals and nuts in the United States," turned its attention today to group forums.

The convention was to wind up with an address by Merle Thorpe, editor of the Nations Business.

Davey, defeated in the August primaries, is himself a Democrat.

"Tax oppression," the governor said, "is dragging down new business in this country, and national innovations have been presented so fast the people have not had time to get used to them.

"I believe with all my heart that, if the American people could be assured of a period of peace, we would enter a period of prosperity the like of which this nation never knew before," Davey asserted.

In regard to Tuesday's sweeping Republican victory, Davey said:

"I have sensed that the people wanted to be left alone to readjust themselves and learn how to live under the new order."

"We Democrats," Davey declared, "in recent years have taken to our bosoms all the radicals and nuts in the United States and have made everyone else uneasy."

A. F. OF L. SETS $4,000 INCOME AS GOAL FOR AMERICAN LABOR

(By United Press)

WASHINGTON—Citing a "vigorous upward trend" in business, the American Federation of Labor today proposed a minimum annual income of $4,000 per family as the goal for American workers.

The Federation's monthly business survey—the most optimistic in months—urged labor officials to watch for opportunities to demand wage increases so that union members may "share these gains." It also proposed a study of consumer needs which, it was believed, the AFL may propose at the next session of congress.

The survey said that this country's major problem was to lift production to maximum levels. Warning that "government control is here to stay," it said that "businessmen who hold back production to wait for the freedom of pre-depression are rebelling against the inevitable."

The Federation's $4,000 income proposal was predicated on "maximum production rightly distributed, and a "new conception of wages—wages based on producing power with machines" rather than "human skills and energy alone." It contended that higher incomes were possible for those in more responsible positions.

"Our American economy can achieve a $4,000 income for every family," it said. "But there is no get-rich-quick way of doing this. Nor is there any panacea that will accomplish it."

The AFL outlined three steps which will "bring us nearer this goal"

1. Trade union organization, already begun, throughout industry and a steady and rapid increase in wages.

2. More consideration for the consumer—"the key man of the power age."

3. A production program devised in a "democratic" way by representatives of business, labor, distribution agents, consumers and government officials to make possible "sustained mass production with high standards of living for all."

CYCLIST HURT IN COLLISION

Youth Suffers Fractured Leg In Crash on North Main Street.

A 21-year-old Mansfield youth was in General hospital today with a fractured leg sustained when the motorcycle he was riding collided with an automobile on North Main street yesterday afternoon.

The injured man is William J. Boldt, 53 Gibson avenue, who collided with a machine driven by Gus Witt, 599 Bowman street, as Witt was making a left turn into the Ohio Brass company, police said. Both machines were traveling in opposite directions and collided nearly headon, the motorcycle landing under Witt's car.

A wrecker was called to separate the two vehicles while Boldt was taken to the hospital in a police cruiser.

Hears Windsors To Get Palace Bid For Christmas Holiday

PARIS — (AP) — Friends of the Duke and Duchess of Windsor expressed belief that the Duke and Duchess of Gloucester, who arrived in Paris today, brought an invitation for the former king and his American-born wife to spend Christmas with the royal family in England.

The Gloucesters, homeward bound from an East African hunting trip, flew from Marseille to Le Bourget airport in the royal family's private plane and immediately motored to the Hotel Meurice, temporary home of the Windsors.

There they went at once to the Windsor's suite, where the former King Edward VIII and his second younger brother met for the first time since the former's abdication nearly two years ago.

The Duke of Windsor and his American-born duchess—the former Wallis Warfield, for whom he gave up the throne Dec. 10, 1936, and whom he married June 4, 1937, rose early today to prepare for the arrival of the duke and duchess.

PLAN PROGRAM TO HELP CURB DELINQUENCY

City, WPA and 'Y' Join Hands in Recreation Set-Up for Winter Months.

A winter recreation program designed to help curb juvenile delinquincy was being drafted today by city officials with the cooperation of WPA and the Y. M. C. A.

The program as outlined by Mayor Claude M. Hunter today calls for indoor and outdoor activities that will extend throughout the city.

The tentative schedule of indoor recreation programs includes model airplane building, woodworking, handicraft, knitting, sewing and cooking.

"With our public schools undergoing additions and improvements which has resulted in the pupils attending classes only part time, it has been deemed necessary for their good that some profitable pastime be provided," Hunter said.

He explained that the Y. M. C. A. and several of the city park associations already had made arrangements to donate quarters where the classes and recreation programs could be conducted.

The indoor projects are to be supervised by trained WPA workers while Coaches Russel Murphy and Harry Mehock of Senior High school and Don Cram of the Y. M. C. A. will conduct the outdoor sports programs.

Includes Ice Carnivals.

Among these are to be junior and senior ice carnivals and an inter-city carnival for grade school children, besides a winter sports sliding carnival.

The outdoor program is being drafted to make use of the city park system by keeping the children out of the streets, Hunter said.

As in past years floodlights will be installed at North Lake park to provide for night skating and a hockey team, replete with uniforms already has been formed and is expected to participate in several contests during the winter.

The sliding carnival will be sponsored by the Y. M. C. A. and will be one of the most unique sports programs that Mansfield has ever witnessed. The event which is expected to rival the summer soap box derby calls for the dishpan slide, the coal shovel slide, the barrel stave scooter contest and the barrel stave bobsled contest. Prizes are to be awarded winners in each event.

Book Week is being celebrated from Nov. 13 through Nov. 19.

Approximately two-thirds of the nation's meat supply, or 70,000,000 animals annually, is inspected by federal officials.

CHAPTER 43.

RONALD MADE no explanation of his remark at the office window but Judy understood. There were everlasting hills, far to the south where the moon rose, clean and white and pure, night after night, and men fought, when they fought, with their fists in the open.

They did not use subtle underhanded methods.

They had feuds, yes. They knew how to beat you to the trigger. But you knew when war is on and you were armed.

Very gently Judy said: "Supper is ready, Ronald, and it smells so good!"

While they ate he talked some more of those places that he loved.

"I had a small boy's yearning to grow up and be a lawyer and hang my shingle in one of the county seats. When I was in school, after I ran away from home, I read law books at night in the office of an old man who seldom had any clients but had a fair library. His day was about done.

"I wanted to stay down there. I started out all right even after I finished at Princeton."

"You liked Princeton?" Judy asked. She had been there many times. She had watched the crew practice and had been a guest at many proms and games. Ronald had been there, too, and she must have heard his name mentioned, never dreaming how important that name was to be to her some day. It was during Ronald's last year or two that she had been an occasional guest. Most of her prom going had been confined to Harvard, however, because Craig was there.

* * *

She had not thought of him much these days. He was so definite a part of that world that she had left behind the day she moved away from her father's closed penthouse. She had saved no niche for Mary and him in this new life. Some day she would call Mary. She remembered that she had liked her.

Ronald was saying that he had enjoyed Princeton, chatting on as though it eased him to talk on some theme divorced from the present unhappy situation.

Not until the supper was cleared away and the dishes stacked in a basket ready to be returned to the restaurant, did Judy mention the loan. Ronald was beginning to empty the desk drawers

She stopped him.

"Why not wait until tomorrow, Ronald? Maybe you won't be leaving."

"My resignation's in. I'll be leaving all right."

"But I have an idea." She sat down on the edge of the desk and put her chin on her hands, her elbows on her knees. As well as she could she told him about her small bank account.

When she finished, he looked at her a long time. Then he said:

"Judy, you make me want to cry."

"Why, Ronald?"

"You're so swell. I'll never forget. But I can't accept it, Judy dear."

She was hurt. It showed in her eyes. So Ronald said quickly:

"There are some favors a man can't accept from a woman, Judy. Especially the woman whom he—" He changed his sentence. "It isn't done. Don't think I don't appreciate it. I'm deeply grateful."

"But this is different, Ronald. The money's there, waiting. It might help so much."

He shook his head. "No, Judy. Nothing money can do will help. The police department will do all of that. If we can out-smart a crook, that's fine. If we can't—" He shook his head. "I'd like to know who hates me so much he would want me disbarred, perhaps imprisoned."

* * *

Judy put the bankbook away. She could not return it to her father. He would wonder at her change of heart. The money could stay in the bank, draw its 2 per cent, and some day, if his fortunes toppled above his head again, she would hand him the book.

But that time might never come. If it did, she would not be caught in its meshes. She was making a good life of her own. Then she brought her thoughts back to Ronald, the easiest thing in the world to do. Since she had admitted proudly and silently that she loved him, day and night her world revolved about him.

Quietly they went on with the work—sorting, arranging, putting things in a big box, several smaller boxes.

They inhabited a world of their own. Tomorrow the tides of time and chance would break over them, but tonight there was no past, no future—no, that was not true. There was only the past, nothing but the future. This hour they separated the two. It would be blotted out in the stronger current of remembered days, and unlived days.

* * *

When the telephone in the outer office rang, they did not heed it at first.

Then Ronald said: "The switchboard operator closes the rest of the board at night and leaves only one key open. It's ringing so long maybe I had better see who it is."

Judy followed him down the hall. She was standing at his side when he picked up the telephone which connected with the open line.

She heard his sharp exclamation. "Abbey!"

He sat down in a nearby chair and his face was scowling.

"Where are you?" he said quickly.

He held the mouthpiece nearer as he said: "Abbey, speak slowly and tell me everything again. Slowly this time."

He didn't move as he listened. Once his eyes flickered and he looked at Judy, but she knew that he did not see her, that his mind was far away.

She wondered dully if it were Abbey, after all, who was helping him. Perhaps Abbey had taken her words literally and set out to be of service.

Ronald was speaking again.

"Abbey, don't say one word about this to anyone. Understand? Not to anyone! I've got to see you—"

Abbey must have said something, for Ronald answered:

"No, I'd rather not come out at this hour—it's nearly ten, isn't it, and it takes an hour for the trip. You can't get any kind of a train in, either."

Then a few seconds later he added: "Your car? Fine! I'll meet you—"

But Judy did not hear that. She had turned and gone back to the office. The magic was gone, the spell broken. The room was Ronald's office, being dismantled because he was going away. Forever. Abbey had called and he was meeting her. In some unaccountable way their paths were fastened together. Slowly Judy drew her hat over the tumbled curls and slipped her arms into her coat sleeves. When Ronald came from the telephone she was ready, waiting for him.

He looked at her approvingly. "Good girl! You recognize the need for haste. Thank the Lord you have sense! Some women haven't enough brains to—oh, forget it!"

If he was speaking about Abbey Judy did not know. In some way she thought he was. That was wonderful! If only he would speak of Abbey always in that tone!

But he wouldn't. He would see her and forgive whatever she had done. In just an hour or so. No, less. If Abbey drove in, she would come flying.

* * *

Ronald had put on his coat and he was piling up the boxes to carry away.

"I'll take them home in a cab," he said, "before I meet Abbey."

It was then he remembered Judy did not know the purpose of the call. He crossed to her, put his hands on her shoulders and his steady eyes probed hers.

Roosevelt Planning Cabinet Shakeup, Capital Hears

SPECULATE ON SHIFT IN FOUR MAJOR POSTS

Washington Observers See Swanson, Woodring, Roper, Farley in Changes.

(By Associated Press)

WASHINGTON—The end of the election hubbub brought a revival today of unconfirmed reports that President Roosevelt was contemplating his first shakeup of the cabinet.

Presidents sometimes make mid-term changes in their group of official advisers, but Mr. Roosevelt himself has given no indication that he intends to do so. Nevertheless there has been recurrent talks in the capital that two or more members might resign or be shifted to other posts.

Among those mentioned have been Secretaries Swanson of the navy, Woodring of war, Roper of commerce, and Postmaster General Farley.

Farley Has Offer.

A year ago an automobile company offered Farley its presidency, and some friends predicted then he would quit the cabinet but continue as chairman of the Democratic national committee.

The promotion of Woodring from assistant secretary was the only change that followed Mr. Roosevelt's re-election in 1936. The way for that change was opened by the death of Secretary George H. Dern.

The only other shift in Mr. Roosevelt's original 1933 appointees also resulted from death, that of Secretary William H. Woodin of the treasury. He was succeeded Jan. 1, 1934, by Henry Morgenthau, jr.

The administration's projected rearmament program suggested to some capital politicians that changes might be made in the war and navy posts.

Secretary Swanson, 76, has been in ill health for years.

One suggestion advanced in some quarters—without his encouragement—is that Woodring may be shifted to the Philippines as American high commissioner, succeeding Paul V. McNutt, who has disclosed he shortly will come back to the United States.

As high commissioner Woodring would lose nothing in rank and would receive a higher salary—$18,000 a year against a cabinet member's $15,000.

TRIO IN JAIL

Two Bound Over, Third Serves Out $75 Fine.

Three men wanted by Pennsylvania authorities on automobile theft charges were in county jail today, two waiting grand jury action and a third serving out a maximum fine as a suspicious person.

Arraigned in municipal court yesterday, James O'Neil, 28, and Theodore Cooke, 20, pleaded innocent to charges of carrying concealed weapons. They were bound over to the grand jury by Municipal Judge G. E. Kalbfleisch under bonds of $1,000 each.

The third man, Earl Kelly, 28, pleaded guilty to a suspicious person charge and was fined $75 and costs. Unable to pay, he was taken to county jail.

The three, who said they lived in Connellsville, Pa., were arrested Monday by Capt. T. M. Bell and Patrolman C. W. Kyler while driving a car reported stolen in Pennsylvania. Officers said they found two loaded revolvers and a box of ammunition in the car.

CINCINNATI — (AP) — William Jackson, 44, was under indictment for second degree murder in the death of Edward Andres, 18, who was shot fatally Oct. 9 during an argument after an automobile collision was narrowly averted.

Dayton Cheers Order To Re-Open Schools

Up and Down THE STREET

Tonight Ed Chatlain of Mansfield and Wittenberg college will be the guest of Dick Olin of Mansfield at the latter's fraternity at Kenyon college. Tomorrow along about 2 p. m. Chatlain will don the grid livery of Wittenberg college and Olin will put on his Kenyon football duds. And if Halfback Olin tries any end runs to his right, Chatlain will probably be the man who will be there to meet him. They are former Mansfield high teammates.

* * *

Many Mansfielders were recalling today the manner in which the city received the news of the signing of the Armistice in 1918 and the wild celebration that followed. Word that the war was over reached Mansfield at 2 a. m., and The News gave the signal which set off bells and whistles all over the city. During the remainder of the night people began to gather, and the celebration continued throughout the day, with every industrial plant, every business place — except restaurants — closed. Even the telephone girls were given a holiday and impromptu parades made their way through milling throngs. Edward Purney, telegrapher for the newspaper, was the first man in the city to learn the war was over.

In the exhibit case at the Public library is a collection of shoes from Oriental countries which belongs to Miss Hazel Underwood, 149 West Fourth street. She collected them in her trip around the world in 1937. In the collection are sandals from Java, Japanese gretas, wooden "shoes" that are merely soles of wood and which are worn with a mitten-like spat that has a stall for the big toe. The coolie sandals from Japan show the Western influence for they have rubber soles.

Only three excuses—and the kind most men would be reluctant to give—will be accepted from members of the Men's club of the Brinkerhoff school who say they can't attend a "men only" party at the school Wednesday night. C. C. Secrist, principal of the school, sent out novel invitations today which included a card to fill out and return to him, indicating whether the member will attend. The card lists these "acceptable" reasons for not attending. 1, I have to mind the baby; 2, I have to scrub the cellar; 3, I'm going to a quilting bee.

WINS PAROLE

Mansfielder to Leave London After Serving 21 Months.

Wilbur Bunker, Mansfield, was one of 61 convicts of the London Prison farm granted paroles today by the Ohio parole board.

Bunker, who will be released Jan. 15, 1939, was sentenced from Richland county on March 2, 1937 for assaulting a small girl. He was given a 2 to 20 year term in the penitentiary and later was transferred to the prison farm.

COUNTY FLOOD CONTROL JOB TO PROVIDE WORK FOR 500 ON WPA

A county-wide WPA flood control program will be launched within the next 10 days to provide employment during the winter for nearly 500 men now employed on road and sewer projects in the county and city, it was announced today.

The project, which will cost $131,000, will get under way about Nov. 21 in Jackson, Springfield and Cass townships, Deputy County Engineer Walter E. Rusk said.

The entire project will cost the county and city approximately $26,000. It calls for dredging of Ritter's Run and Touby's Run in Mansfield and improvement of 10 drainage ditches in eight townships. Cost of the work in Mansfield was estimated at $42,000.

Mayor C. M. Hunter said the city would have trouble producing its share of the cost, but added that he would ask council's finance committee to raise about $1,000 to start the program. Much of the county's contribution will be in equipment provided by the road department.

There is a possibility that assessments will be made against individual land owners in the sections drained by the ditches to help finance the program, Rusk pointed out. County officials were not certain, however, that such a procedure would be permitted under the WPA set-up.

County Engineer H. C. Sword said the project would absorb most of the workers on WPA projects who would otherwise be idle when cold weather forces a halt in road work.

About 100 men will be employed at the outset of the new program on the Gray-Hagenbaugh ditch in Jackson township, the Wright ditch in Springfield township, and the Dinninger ditch in Cass township, the engineer said.

Other projects included in the program are the Willet ditch in Cass township, Chronister ditch in Madison township, Possum Run ditch in Washington and Monroe townships, Rocky Fork ditch in Madison township, Lanehart ditch in Jefferson township, Lincoln Heights ditch in Madison township, and Cedar Fork creek in Perry and Jefferson townships.

FIRMS MERGE

Mansfield, Columbus Insurance Agencies Combine.

Formation of a new Mansfield insurance agency, brought about through the merger of two Mansfield firms and one Columbus agency, was announced today.

The new concern will be known as Slough, Locke and Powell Agency, Inc., and will have offices at 510-14 Richland Trust building, former offices of the Edwin G. Slough agency.

Firms involved in the merger are the Slough agency, and the W. J. Locke agency of Mansfield, with L. T. Powell of Columbus as the third member. Incorporation papers were granted yesterday in Columbus.

Herbert R. Slough is president of the new firm and will handle the fire and casualty business. Locke is vice president and will handle accident, health and life policies. Powell will move to Mansfield in the near future.

34,000 PUPILS TO GO BACK TO STUDIES NOV. 21

Advances on Future Payments of Taxes to Keep Schools Running Rest of Year.

(By Associated Press)

DAYTON — Dayton's 34,000 school children are to return to their classes Nov. 21 for the first time in three weeks.

Before a cheering crowd of citizens, the board of education voted last night to accept a plan to re-open the schools, closed since Oct. 28 because of a $61,000 deficit, on a promise of availability of $430,000.

The vote, in which only one advocate of a "pay-as-you-go" policy dissented, followed long debate over a plan prepared by a three-man committee headed by Probate Judge William C. Wiseman.

8 Months Next Year.

Judge Wiseman held that advances against tax collections would provide for the 1939-40 school year, but Supt. Emerson Landis reiterated that only an eight-month term could be counted on next year because of failure of a two-mill levy in Tuesday's election.

The committee's plan called for schools to open next Monday, with the deficit being carried over to next year, but the board deferred the re-opening a week in hopes of entering 1939 financially in the clear.

Four sources weer listed for the $430,000—$38,000 from real estate tax distribution, $112,000 from tangible personal property taxes, $32,483 in state reimbursement for local teaching of handicapped children, and $247,745 from the state school foundation fund.

As a result of the board's action, the school will continue on a normal basis until Dec. 16, when the Christmas vacation starts, and then resume Jan. 2.

Richard Withrow, board member who opposed the closing, instituted injunction proceeding after the board issued its closing order Oct. 26. He announced he would ask a dismissal of his injunction petition and added, referring to the defeat of the levy:

"If the people want to go back to the three R's and the little red schoolhouse, that's what they'll have."

The audience will judge the winners and first place prize is $10, with second and third winners to get $7.50 and $5.

Jitterbugs who take part in the contest must register with the Ohio theater before tomorrow night, so that music may be arranged for their number.

Poor Guys in Love Are Too Dumb to Realize the Shortcomings of Women

—By WESTBROOK PEGLER

NEW YORK—Most ladies are more or less pretty or otherwise attractive when they are young, and most boys of marrying age are either too dumb or too badly confused by the sweet misery of love to realize that all ladies, even the prettiest of them, are not divine creatures, but human beings. This means that they are likely to have faults.

Some of them have very bad tempers, some are whiners, naggers and bores, some are lazy and untidy, suspicious, jealous, bossy, extravagant, stingy, unkind or dumb.

Ladies have about the same faults that men have and about the same virtues. Their virtues, however, have been publicized by poets and masters of the other arts, to the general neglect of their shortcomings, and they are very clever at covering up their flaws until after the wedding.

It is an instinct.

Mostly the males are able to endure or laugh off traits which manifest themselves after the glad chimes have died away. They balance the bad against the good—consider their own little imperfections and decide within themselves that mamma is not perfect, by any means, but all right and certainly a lot better than that terrible person that George Spelvin is tied to.

* * *

It is a matter of temperaments and of adjustments, and a wife who is generally satisfactory, though by no means perfect, for one man would be a terrible plague to another. If it were possible to imagine a general reshuffle of the pairings in a given circle, the result would be a terrible screech and clatter in a normally quiet neighborhood and probably a few murders.

But, of course, some people who marry find themselves simply unable to stick it out, and after a while are able to agree on only one thing—divorce. In that case he has to pay her alimony even if there are no children, and if she is one of those smart ones, interested in nothing but a good living and independence, she is set for life, while he is stuck for life.

He has to give her first chop at his pay and is unable to deduct this dead loss from his income for tax purposes, and if he gets married again, the second one goes around grousing about what a dope he was to marry the first one, anyway.

* * *

It is just pitiful the things some por guys have to stand for from their old ladies. Some of them play bridge all the time and get into jams with other dolls who are married to important business associates.

Some get tight at parties and start scraps or otherwise embarrass their husbands. Some chisel on the family bank account, run up bills on the quiet and keep a man up to his eyes in debt all the time. Then, when they get bawled out, they squawk and cry or take the other tack, telling him he is a bum, unable to support a wife as he should, which is worse.

The determined woman is another terrible type. This kind seems gentle as a kitten when young, but after marriage reveals an iron will and compels the husband to go to restaurants or out to the neighbors' houses night after night when he is so damned tired he wishes he could get pneumonia or something so he could go to bed for a month.

But boys of marrying age are not of normal mind when they get in love. They just think how adorable she is and all like that, and nothing can snap them out of it. It certainly seems too bad, but that is the way it goes.

Hollywood Speaks—

—By ROBBIN COONS

HOLLYWOOD—Bette Davis remains our best reason for wishing there were more stars like her.

The way she works, for one thing. There's so little hocus-pocus about it that you might think she were tackling another row of buttons at the button factory or plunging in to do the dishes after a party.

*

Bette's new one, "Dark Victory," is no cheerful piece. It's steeped in heavy drama of the sort that Bette has made her specialty. Maybe there's a cheerful philosophical note in it somewhere—there has to be—but its subject is a girl who learns she has but ten months to live, and what she does with those ten months.

Production started on a closed stage. So Bette, too, was getting that way? Another Garbo? Heck, no! The stage was closed for Edmund Goulding. He's the director.

* * *

The other day the scene was that in which Bette discovers, by accident, Dr. George Brent's diagnosis of her case. He has left it among his papers, little suspecting that Bette's on the prowl. She comes in gaily, starts tidying up, and then, all of a sudden, there it is, with her name on it. She reads it, and it hits her between the eyes.

Well, that is what is known in these parts as a BIG SCENE. If you know your movie actresses, you know that most of them are going to take a big scene BIG. Garbo and Hepburn, of course, would take it behind closed doors. Luise Rainer would "live with it" for hours, maybe days, before she'd expose her sensitive reactions to the camera. Joan Crawford would dream around the set, with emotion-stirring music on her phonograph, to get in the mood.

All of which is quite all right. Maybe it's necessary. I happen to like B. Davis' system better. She's standing in for the rehearsal, and she's looking mighty cute in a fur-trimmed dress and fur hat. Her hair is "up"—whoa, that's funny. Wasn't she the gal who said she never would? Wasn't she the one who said she'd had enough of that style during "The Sisters"?

She comes over to smoke a cigaret while they get the scene ready. How come, lady?

"Oh, it's just for this one costume," she alibis quickly. "After all, a hat like this can't be worn with a bob."

* * *

And obviously, it can't. "I cut my hair short—I'm not a Gibson girl any more," she adds. "Have you heard what the Screen Actors guild is doing? Making up samples of actors' hair for sale at the world's fair. They'll have plenty of mine—it came below my shoulders after 'The Sisters.' Perc Westmore has been saving samples of everybody's. They'll put it up in little charm cases. Excuse me...."

She is back on the set, and the scene is on. She trips gaily into Dr. Brent's office, goes through her gay dialogue, rustles through the papers and suddenly stares. Little by little, the idea strikes home. You can see it in the tenseness of her figure, in her face, in her eyes. She takes it BIG.

And I think, in fact, she couldn't take it BIGGER behind closed doors. She couldn't do it BETTER with six symphonies playing. She couldn't do it more movingly if she spent hours working into the Mood, Living with the Part, and Boring the Tar out of everybody on the stage.

Most Can't Get Along Without Love

(Famous Authority on Problems of Love and Marriage).

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

"Is love a prime need of life," asks a young college woman who has broken her engagement for what she considers good and sufficient reasons.

There are, of course, exceptional people devoted to some absorbing and unselfish interests, who are able to do without personal love in the romantic sense, and who don't even seem to need it particularly. But most of us aren't like that.

It's not an easy thing for the average man or woman to lead a happy, useful life, unless he or she has a sound life—giving love on which to depend. Those who achieve careers are in a group by themselves, and career men and women do marry, and many of them are happily married.

The question of career or marriage simmers down to the amount of talent involved. Sufficiently gifted, a woman is safe in attempting both. It's the mediocre that fall by the wayside and lament that home, husbands and children prevent the world's recognition.

Most women marry and work, and the work is not a "career." In itself, marriage is a pretty big career. In a survey of juvenile delinquency, the conclusion was reached, by those making the survey, that criminal tendencies were made by bad environment in the home.

As for the food our hearts demand—the diet of our inner lives—those are the precious rations that is a good deal more difficult and more dangerous to give up—far better than philandering after a career that is still in the uncertain stage.

HOROSCOPE

For Saturday, Nov. 12.

ACCORDING to the lunar transits, this day places the accent on occupation, work, employers and those in influential positions who may stand ready to give recognition, preferment and favors to those meriting such co-operation and endorsement. This may involve some minor changes, possibly short journeys or a rearrangement of surroundings and plans. Care is recommended in these, as there are signs of trivial annoyances, gossip and duplicities.

Those whose birthday it is may encounter a year in which their superiors and employers may be disposed to bestow favors, promotion or other tokens of personal preferment. This may bring about small changes or travel, new plans and associates, but in all be wise in avoiding trivialties, gossip and petty grievances.

A child born on this day may be versatile, clever and bright, with tongue and pen, arising to preferred station with its superiors or employers.

Marriage Meddlers

By ADELE GARRISON

Continuation of "Married Comrades"

"Look here, Auntie Madge!" she said. "I think you're getting me all wrong on this reunion thing. If you have any sneaking idea that I'm not perfectly ecstatically delirious about seeing my darling when I hadn't expected to for weeks to come, and that I'm not eternally grateful to you for arranging it, you've got eight or nine more thinks coming. I'd be jumping up and down and turning cartwheels all over the place if it weren't for the thought of that devilish old father of Noel's, and how I'm sure he's planned to double-cross me. And you've been so perfectly swell in plotting how to beat him at his own game that I think I'd just lie down and die if anything that was my fault went wrong with the plan. And you know honestly, don't you, Auntie Madge, that I'm not letter perfect in your interpretation yet?"

"No, you're not," I said. "But will you believe something else as fully as you accept that statement?"

"I would believe anything you told me, Auntie Madge," she said fervently. "You're so superbly honest, you simply couldn't palter."

"Then," I said slowly, impressively, "I want you to know that you've progressed far more rapidly in your task than I had believed it possible for even you to do. And if, as you say,"—I smiled at her—"I'm 'superbly honest', I'm also superbly confident that you're going to give so living and human an interpretation of that role that your father-in-law, whose love of artistic truth is as strong as his disregard for ethics, would cut off his right hand rather than take the role away from you."

"I wish I shared that confidence," she said mournfully.

"If you did," I retorted, smiling, "I should have my first doubt of your ultimate success. Go on worrying. It's salutary for you, but don't expect me to share your anxiety. My job is to keep you working, not myself worrying."

True Trouper.

"That's just it," she said. "Do you think I can afford to waste all this time with the boys and Noel?"

"You're a true trouper," I told her.

"Oh! do you think so?" she caroled. "You couldn't give me a nicer compliment. 'The play must go on', and all that sort of thing. I do hope I'll always deserve it."

"You will," I said a bit dryly. "And don't worry about wasted time. If I hadn't thought you could afford to spare the time, I wouldn't have planned for Noel to come into the city without his father's knowledge and in defiance of his father's wishes. Nor would I have permitted the boys to take up your time this afternoon. I should have sent them to the theater by themselves. But since they will not see you again for so long, I felt that we must give them this pleasure. And as for Noel, you and I will be able to get in quite a bit of work while we are over at his hotel."

"I hope so," she said, but her voice was pessimistic. Then, with a wary glance at me, she pumped more enthusiasm into her voice.

"Of course we will," she said. "And if Noel doesn't behave and be sweet and enthusiastic over the idea, I'll strangle him."

"I'll help pull the noose tight," I told her, laughing. "But we must get back to the boys. They'll be sure we've forgotten all about them."

"Well, we have, haven't we?" she said ruefully. Then, as we started with one accord toward the door, she held back for an instant.

"Have you thought," she said, "that while my respected pap-in-law is forbidden to call up the farmhouse and talk to his son, there is no prohibition of his calling up here, and demanding speech with me?"

Haste Wrecks Many Beauties

By MME. QUI VIVE

Do you realize that continued fatigue is the world's cruelest beauty wrecker? If you are worn out you are under par and life isn't any fun. Life should be fun.

Many women wear themselves out needlessly. Regard the woman who is late for appointments, always behind like a dog's tail. She never allows sufficient time to dress, never allows for interruptions that come into every household.

Mrs. Smarty takes her time. She makes haste slowly and she looks as crisp as fresh lettuce.

* * *

Hurry and worry form a combination that puts shadows on faces that should be bright and shining. They upset the nervous system, which prefers the calm life. With nervous systems jangling massages all over the body, the digestive motors stop running or slow up. It is a vicious circle. When women realize what unpleasant emotions and disturbing mental attitudes do to their physical beings and appearance there will be more poise and less money spent on cosmetics.

If the telephone rings do you gallop to it, skid the last few feet? Take your time. If the woman at the other end of the line is a terrible bore, wants to talk for half an hour, do you bear with her? Don't. You'll get upset, probably have a headache. A little white fib is justified. Dull conversation is exhausting.

* * *

Have you the habit of puttering around the house when you should be in bed? You are doing yourself an injustice. Are you a hasty eater? Where does that get you? Eventually into a doctor's office because of discomfort in the tummy and into the beauty shop because malnutrition makes the complexion horrid.

Measuring

If a recipe calls for mashed bananas, peel them and press them through a coarse strainer before you measure out the quantity. The pulp will soften easily if gently beaten with a fork.

Pie Still Favorite Of Many

By ALICE LYNN BARRY

A READER writes that she has received so much applause for her lemon meringue pie that she thinks our other readers might like to try their luck at her recipe.

It calls for one and one-quarter cups sugar, one-quarter teaspoon salt, six tablespoons cornstarch, two cups boiling water, grated rind of one-half lemon, four tablespoons butter, three eggs yolks, one-half cup lemon juice for one baked pie shell. Mix sugar, salt and cornstarch. Add water and grated lemon rind. Cook over low heat, stirring until thickened. Simmer for 10 minutes. Add butter. Pour hot mixture over beaten egg yolks and lemon juice mixed. Strain at once into the baked pie shell and bake at 400 degrees F. for 10 minutes. Cover with meringue and return to 350 degrees F. oven for 18 minutes.

Pear Cream Pie.

Pear cream pie is very good, a grand festive dessert. It calls for one-third cup flour, two-thirds cup sugar, one-eighth teaspoon salt, two cups milk, scalded; two tablespoons butter, three egg yolks, three-quarters teaspoon vanilla, three drops almond extract, six canned pear halves, well drained; whipped cream, currant jelly and one baked pie shell. Combine flour, sugar and salt thoroughly in top of double boiler. Add scalded milk, slowly, stirring well. Cook, stirring often until mixture is thick and smooth. Add butter. Beat egg yolks slightly; add a little hot mixture, then stir quickly into hot mixture. Cook and stir until thickened. Cool. Add flavoring. Fill cooked pastry shell. Arrange pears, rounded and towards rim of pastry, pressing lightly so that surface of pear is flush with filling. Fill hollow of pears with jelly. Fill spaces between pears and center with sweetened whipped cream.

Prune Whip Pie.

Prune whip pie is another sweet idea. To make it you'll need one pound cooked prunes, pitted and chopped, three-quarters cup sugar, three-quarters cup chopped nut meats, tablespoon lemon juice, two egg whites, whipped cream. Beat egg whites until stiff. Add sugar and nuts, then the prunes. Fold all together lightly. Add lemon juice. Place the mixture in a pie shell that has been baked 10 minutes at 500 degrees F. Return to oven and bake 30 minutes at a temperature of 350 degrees F.

Here is a tip for afternoon tea: cut a lemon into thin slices, add two drops of mint extract and cover tightly. Store for an hour or so and then arrange the lemon slices on a small dish with edges overlapping.

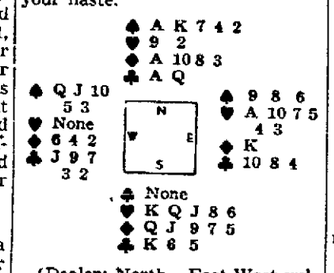
BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

By Shepard Barclay

"The Authority on Authorities"

HOLD YOUR TONGUE

IF AN OPPONENT commits some irregularity, such as a lead out of turn or from the wrong hand in the case of dealer, you will do well to think a moment before speaking. Of course you do not play bridge primarily for the purpose of profiting from such occurrences. But neither do you wish to suffer unjustly from them, as you may if you speak at the wrong time or say the wrong thing in your haste.



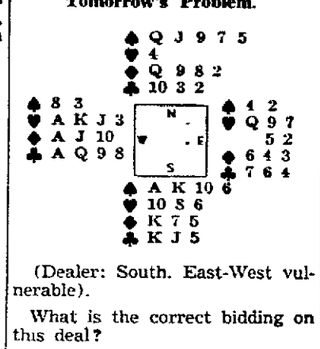
(Dealer: North. East-West vulnerable).

North started the bidding on this deal with 1-Spade. South responded with 2-Hearts. North bid 2-Spades, South 3-Diamonds. North 4-No Trump. South 5-Diamonds and North 6-Diamonds.

West's opening lead against this contract was the spade Q, which was won in the dummy with the K and a heart discarded. In his anxiety to try out the diamond finesse, South led the diamond Q, whereupon West shouted: "The lead is in dummy." Crestfallen, declarer felt his haste had ruined his chances for the slam, but he "took the bull by the horns" and laid down the diamond A. Imagine his joy when East's singleton K dropped. Declarer took two more rounds of trumps and forced out the heart A, which was the only trick the opponents cashed.

It is impossible to quote the remarks of East. When the diamond Q was led he knew the contract was doomed, but West's remarks handed the slam to the opponents.

Tomorrow's Problem.



(Dealer: South. East-West vulnerable).

What is the correct bidding on this deal?

Wife Preservers

Change your pictures when you rearrange your room. Put away some of those you have had hanging for some time, and hang others in their places. Inexpensive reproductions of fine paintings may often be obtained, cut from magazines, perhaps, and framed in cheap but tasteful frames to decorate your rooms.

Stuffing

Remember that stuffing needs room for expansion during cooking inside a fowl. So do not press it too much; it will become soggy. If a highly seasoned stuffing is desired use bacon or sausage fat or meat drippings for the fat called for. Butter gives a delicate flavor preferred by many.
